ACTOR AND Carmel resident Clint Eastwood has reason to be all smiles this week. Not only has Eastwood and the city agreed to compromises that will allow him to build his retail and office complex building, but he recently danced with Lady Di, Princess of Wales; and he was named "Star of the Decade" in a New Orleans meeting of the National Association of Theater Owners. Eastwood, city put guns away settle dispute over building

By MICHAEL GARDNER

SOMETIMES, both sides can come out winners.

Clint Eastwood and the city of Carmel have reached an out-of-court settlement that will allow the world-famous actor and Carmel resident to build his two-story office and retail complex on the west side of San Carlos Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

The agreement was signed Nov. 14 following a closed door meeting of the council Nov. 12, but the compromise ending the two and one-half-year-old controversy was not announced until this week.

In essence both sides received exactly what they wanted with little conceeding.

Fof his part, Eastwood got his guarantee of approval from the city if he redesigned the building.

The city council also got what it wanted: a redesign that pushes the building back from the sidewalk, less glass and an all-wood exterior.

Eastwood had filed a lawsuit in Monterey County Superior Court challenging the council's unanimous denial of his project. Eastwood believed that the council was vague and ambiguous in its reasoning.

But following a series of events after the filing of the lawsuit — including Eastwood's decision to bring his plight to the public at a Carmel Business Association breakfast meeting in October — the two parties were able reach an accord.

Under terms of the agreement, Eastwood will drop his lawsuit and refile final working drawings with the city building department. If there are no major changes, the building department has the authority to sign off the project without it again going to the planning commission or city council.

Eastwood also must obtain a permit from the city and Coastal Commission to demolish the Shell Fisher Gallery building.

Eastwood plans a series of three buildings in a U-shaped complex to be developed on the property immediately north of his Hog's Breath Inn restaurant. The building will replace a vacant lot, the Shell Fisher Gallery building and the lot formerly occupied by the now-closed Nishi Nursery.

Under the agreement, Eastwood will push back the front buildings by at least three feet, the southern building wall will be set back a minimum of seven feet and the display window of one of the buildings will be set back a minimum of 17 feet, 11 inches.

THE BALCONY setbacks for the building nearest the property line will be three feet.

Display windows throughout the complex will be smaller and pushed farther back from the street frontage and walkway between buildings.

All exteriors will be of wood, either shingles or redwood siding. The original concept included some stucco.

The amount of glass as seen from the walkway between buildings also will be reduced to eliminate a see-through effect. The large amounts of glass had prompted former Planning Commissioner John Logan's now-famous quote that "you can look right through and see someone scratching his privates."

Once these amendments are made to the design the city "shall be deemed to have approved the project as modified by the stipulated amendments."

That was the key phrase Eastwood looked for. Throughout the negotiations Eastwood had said he would redesign the

A religious experience

Dear Editor:

We left Carmel for Reno with our "Star Trek"-er-"Slot Trek" gang of adventurers on Nov. 10 — the birthday of Chief Clyde Klaumann. Okay, I know he's retired, but to me, he will always be the chief. He was accompanied by his lovely, lucky wife, Ruth.

Took awhile to load our bus at The Crossroads and I've seen less confusion loading a troopship, but this was joyous confusion. We sang "Happy Birthday" to Clyde, and Marion Fischer said it was the "lousiest rendition" she had ever heard, and she was right, but it came from the heart.

When we were well underway, with the bingo game going, we learned that on account of the storm we had to detour and take the narrow road along the scenic Feather River. Wow! I kept looking out the window straight down to the beautiful North Fork of the Feather — about 1,000 feet! That was no day at the beach for a featherless chicken like me.

Well, we finally made it. It's now 10 a.m. on Monday morning, I'm looking out our hotel window and watching the snow falling. Wonder if we can get out tomorrow morning? We have some very interesting people on this trip. A famous local golfer with a lilting name that you could dance to — Vito Bommarito. Also our Hall of Fame ex-post office employee — the shy, reticent Irene Francis. On board was a cousin of the legendary Luis Angel Firpo, who gained fame by knocking Jack Dempsey out of the ring.

We left Reno Tuesday morning and after running nicely for awhile, we were held up by a multiple-vehicle accident ahead. We waited more than two hours while tow trucks and patrol cars slid by and helicopters dropped in to evacuate the casualties.

Well, we're finally off again and the silent, poignant beauty of the matchless high Sierra forest unfolding before our eyes was a religious experience. So pretty you could cry. Some of the snow-laden trees took the form of different animals. Some with white, outstretched arms looked like supplicating beings asking why, why do you humans do the things you do to us and our animal friends? How can anyone agree with Ronald Reagan when he says, "When you've seen one tree, you've seen them all."

Safely home again and all agreed it was a great trip. Marion Fischer and Joyce Farris are great tour managers and we had a wonderful bus driver. Our "Golden Girls" had fun, fun, fun, especially Alice May, the big winner. Our "Over The Hill Gang" in the male section seemed equally happy, in spite of the fact that for most of us "everything hurts and what doesn't hurt doesn't work anymore."

A new alternative

Dear Editor:

One way in which the Harrison Memorial Library might be expanded has been conspicuously absent from recent publicity. This involves construction in part of the garden area in front of the library. The Environmental Impact Report states that the main floor would be enlarged by 1,800 sq. ft. if this plan were adopted.

Total area available including lower and upper floors is comparable to the larger of the other expansion proposals. The only drawback listed is that serious opposition "could" occur.

Most agree that is highly desirable for all library functions to be in one building. (It was of course this need that promptted serious consideration of closing one block of Lincoln Street.) In my opinion, the advantage of one building would more than offset the loss of part of the garden area.

It would be interesting to know how others feel about this.

Hypocritical propaganda

Dear Editor:

I started the Environmentalist Party because it was obvious that there would be hotel development on our coastline. It was obvious that there would be a reaction to the hotel development in the dunes where the hotel-ecologists want to criminalize walking in the sand. These hotel-ecologists are just landscaping con artists who have to justify their salaries with their hypocritical propaganda. They seem to have entrenched themselves in the state park at Asilomar.

The fact that the voters voted for the Coastal Act in 1972 was, and still is, a fact which most politicians have avoided. They applied the "do-nothing" approach, while the "issue" subsided. They approved the development and expansion of the Asilomar State Park convention hotel. This was facilitated by the state threatening to sue a few people to get their land for the "Asilomar Corporation State Park."

The Asilomar State Park hotel is an example of the state administration. They think of the Monterey Peninsula as just another population to overcome with their unpopular pro-industry politics.

The Spanish Bay golf-course and hotel is the developer's mania to dominate this community. These developers, and Deukmejian's state of California, decided to outlaw walking in the sand in the dunes because "they" built their hotel in the dunes.

As long as our public land in the state park, and the dunes in Spanish Bay, are dominated by the hotel developers and the hotel-ecologists, I will have a recall petition for the governor, for Assemblyman Sam Farr and for Sen. Henry Mello.

Part of Thursday routine

Dear Editor:

Over 15 years ago I became a resident of this area. During that time I have habitually read the Pine Cone, part of my Thursday routine.

The issue of Nov. 7, 1985 demonstrated a new level of journalism. Articles about local individuals, unusual events of interest, in-depth political, business and environmental coverage all created a balance.

I red-penned Hartnell College's presentation on Halley's Comet, a play which I intend to view, and a book I wish to purchase. Also, an article will make its way east to an interested relative.

In hopes that the Pine Cone will continue to expand its reporting, rather than carbon copy previous issues, I thank you, sincerely, for your service.

Overlooked facts

Dear Editor:

There are a couple of important facts that were overlooked in the recent water district campaign.

One is the relationship between an increased supply of water for the Monterey Peninsula and the infrastructure services that will be needed for the development explosion which the added water will provoke.

Do we have adequate sewage facilities to service another burst of development in those areas where building moratoria have been declared, at least partly because of water doubts?

And what effect would such a growth explosion have on the already serious traffic crisis in most Peninsula cities? Even the Hatton Canyon freeway, whenever that's built, will help only residents of Carmel and Carmel Valley.

How about the effect of big new projects on parking problems?

Events which followed the opening of Monterey Bay Aquarium last year dramatized the need to have infrastructure services in place before the gates are thrown open for more tourists and more development.

We must also consider the need for a genuinely careful environmental impact report on the proposed dam, including alternative water sources. Whether water comes from tertiary treament of sewage, which the water management district is exploring, or from the hyacinth recycling method, it might affect the dam size — and cost.

Nobody mentioned, during the election campaign, that the EIR is 80 percent complete, and that the district has already held workshops on the preliminary draft. The target date for completion and the start of EIR hearings is only a little more than four months off — next April.

The spirit of compromise

ONE OF the keys to virtually any successful negotiation is the willingness on the part of both sides of an issue to compromise.

The operative word here is willingness; if the two sides go into negotiations solidly entrenched and unwavering in their respective views, then the chances of those negotiations ending successfully diminish significantly. And it usually only takes one side to take a "we're right, you're wrong and that's all there is to it" attitude to shoot down any hopes for success. That forces the other "side" to take an unwanted defensive posture. What you then end up with is two sides digging in behind fortresses of rhetoric, furiously lobbing invective and personal asides at each other.

On the other hand if the two parties go into negotiations with open minds, with at least the willingness to compromise, then the walls, like those in Jericho, come tumbling down. With the spirit of compromise in the air solutions can be — and usually are — reached.

The latter is exemplified by the satisfactory resolution of the conflict between actor-director Clint Eastwood and the City of Carmel, which appeared to be headed for a prolonged court battle with neither side really getting what they wanted in the first place, except for perhaps a small moral victory for one side or the other.

After some protracted battling in the beginning, including a lawsuit filed by the famous actor, Eastwood and the city put aside the gloves and met in an atmosphere of compromise, or at least the willingness to compromise. From there Eastwood and his people were able hammer out an agreement with the city, an agreement that saw both sides compromise a little and still get essentially what they wanted in the first place.

AN EXAMPLE of the former — in which both sides are combative and appear unwilling to compromise — is exemplified by the turmoil in the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, in which the entire board has tendered its resignation after an "either the board quits or we do" ultimatum by a majority of the volunteer firefighters.

I can understand Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman's frustration and distress at the goings-on in the district. Ultimatums and demands by the firefighters and entrenched thinking and defensive resistance on the part of some members of the board do not make for a conducive atmophere for discussion and negotiation. It doesn't really leave much room for compromise...or resolution.

So the firefighters demands have been met, apparently to the satisfaction of the volunteers, but at what cost? The volunteer's dissatisfaction appeared to be targeted at Ed Haber, some even say it's been the result of a personality conflict, but the volunteer's zeal to have their demands met has resulted in a case of the baby being thrown out with the bathwater.

The district has lost some exemplary board members; it may take a long time for the district to recover from all the turmoil and bad blood. For example Director Dick Krueger appeared willing to compromise and work out an equitable solution, but he's out now. And asked if he would resubmit his name (the firefighters apparently would welcome him back), Krueger said, "I simply do not. If I don't it won't be for any other reason than I'm tired."

And he didn't mean just physically.

It pays to advertise in the Pine Cone

Supervisors' allocation:
There's not enough water to go around

By MICHAEL GARDNER

UNLESS A reclamation project or a new Carmel River dam are developed, Monterey County will not have the water supply for complete residential buildout in Del Monte Forest and Carmel Valley.

That is the message contained within the latest 1985 water allocation priority list unanimously adopted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday morning.

The water allocation can be changed during the annual review and the situation could be altered dramatically by a new dam or reclamation project — both of which are years away from completion if ever approved.

But as it stands now, Monterey County simply does not have enough water in its total allocation of 6,501 ac. ft. to provide for new lots of record. (The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District annually allocates water to the seven cities and county in the California-American Water Co. service area.)

Supervisors have committed most of the water to new residential construction, senior citizen housing projects, and for low- and moderate-cost housing programs.

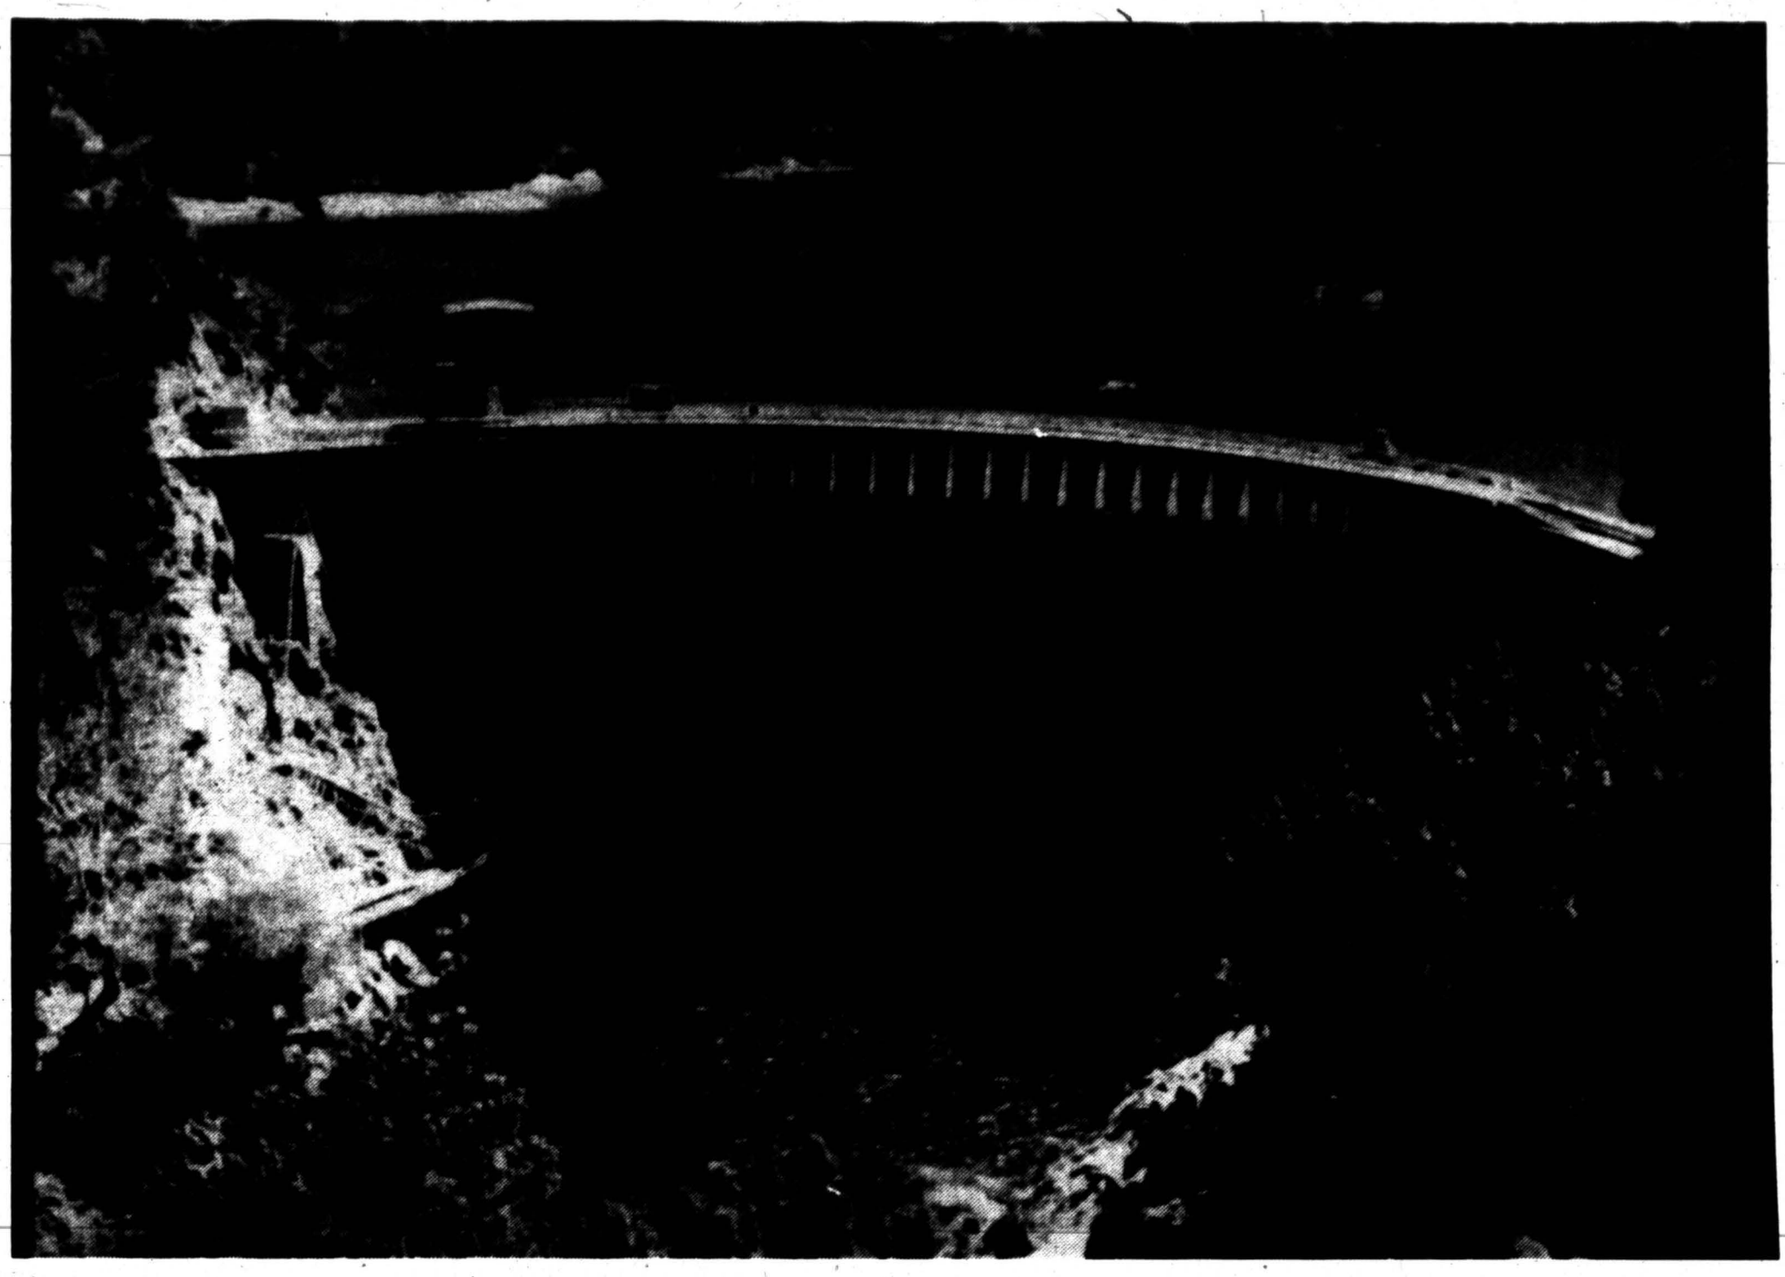
Under the plan, all existing lots of record are guaranteed water.

But to supply their priorities supervisors "took away" water previously promised to undeveloped lots of record in Carmel Valley, Del Monte Forest, and the Point Lobos Ranch hotel and housing project.

Under the new allottment, there will be only 24.82 ac. ft. of water available for the creation of new lots of record in unincorporated Monterey County.

That means that 1,181 new lots in Carmel Valley and 1,077 projected lots in Del Monte Forest will remain undeveloped until the allocation is changed politically, or more water is available through a dam or reclamation project.

There currently is a court-ordered moratorium on the creation of new lots of record in Carmel Valley while the county reworks the master plan and its accompanying environmental impact report to more adequately safeguard the environment.



DAMS ON the Carmel River — such as the San Clemente Dam pictured above — do not provide enough water storage to meet the demands of full buildout of residential properties in Carmel Valley and Del Monte Forest. The Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday adopted a new water allocation system that sets aside most of the available supply for the development of existing residential lots of record. (Linda Morris photo.)

Although no specific numbers are mentioned, the allocation also does not provide water for additional lots of record in the Carmel Local Coastal Program area and along Highway 68.

The county would need an additional 750 ac. ft. of water to supply all of the proposed new lots of record.

Supervisors were in agreement throughout the meeting on most of the allocation priorities with but a couple of individual projects providing any hint of controversy or disagreement.

OVER THE objections of Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman — who authored the philosophy behind the revamped allocation system — the board granted a little under one acre foot of water to the possible expansion of Carmel River Inn.

The interesting part is that supervisors just a few months ago denied the expansion, a fact stressed by Strasser Kauffman, whose motion not to provide water to River Inn died for lack of a second.

Strasser Kauffman reminded the board that the expansion was denied because the property is in the flood plain.

She also did not want to see that extra acre foot go to visitor-serving uses when it's needed for housing projects.

But despite knowing they had denied the expansion, the other four supervisors voted to retain the allocation for Carmel River Inn because the owners intend to reapply for an expansion later.

Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas was the catalyst behind retaining the allocation for the River Inn. He believes the motel is one of the few in the area that charges moderate rates ($26-$40) per night and should be encouraged to reapply for expansion.

Earlier, supervisors did choose to eliminate about 30 ac. ft. of water originally allocated to Point Lobos Ranch.

Architect Paul Davis protested, saying the proposed two, 120-unit hotels, conference center, residential housing and restaurant complex has been debated for 13 years and should be given priority for water.

Davis noted that there are studies underway to determine if there is sufficent water in the San Jose Creek aquifer to supply the project. If that is the case, Point Lobos Ranch would not need to be annexed to the California-American Water Co. service area.

Superviors obviously were amused by Davis' statements in view of the Carmel Valley Ranch project. About 10 years ago Carmel Valley Ranch developers won county approval for their project based on promises to use water if possible from the so-called Tularcitos Aquifer.

A decade later the phased-in ranch project is nearly completed and the Tularcitios Aquifer proved too dry to service the needs of Carmel Valley Ranch.

As Supervisor Marc Del Piero pointed out, from now on the county requires wells to be dug before projects are formally approved.

Big Sur 'TDC' program ok'ed

In other action Tuesday, supervisors approved an ordinance that they believe will compensate Big Sur property owners who have been denied building rights on lots within the view of Highway 1.

Over the protests of many Big Sur residents, some of whom later threatened to challenge the action in court, supervisors approved the controversial transfer of density credit (TDC) program.

Under the ordinance, property owners who cannot build on viewshed lots will be given two development credits.

Those credits then can be used to develop property outside the view of Highway 1 or can be sold to another landowner who has sites out of the critical viewshed.

If the viewshed property owner does not have land elsewhere for development and cannot find a private buyer, supervisors have indicated the county would buy the sites if it can obtain a grant from the state Coastal Conservancy.

Supervisors originally applied for a grant to the Coastal Conservancy which was met with interest. However, the grant application was rejected since the county still had not adopted its Big Sur Land Use Plan which establishes the TDC policy.

Spanish Bay may clear big hurdle

County Environmental Health Officer Walter Wong told supervisors that he will allow a building permit to be issued to Pebble Beach Co. for its Spanish Bay resort hotel, condominium and golf course complex.

Wong had stalled the building permit until there are guarantees that the Carmel Sanitary District has completed the enlargement of its wastewater treatment facility.

Wong anticipates receiving letters this week from the sanitary district and water quality control board confirming completion.

Septic system survey may lead to CV building ban

THE COUNTY may have to order a building moratorium in the Carmel Valley Village area because of significant health hazards posed by leaking or non-working septic systems, according to preliminary results of a study from the Office of Environmental Health.

The study on groundwater contamination in the Carmel Valley Village area that may pave the way for state funding of a new septic system will be unveiled to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday, Nov. 26.

County Environmental Health Officer Walter Wong will present the report to supervisors at 11:45 a.m. The board meets in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Wong, in an interview with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook prior to the meeting said preliminary analysis reveals there there are a significant number of systems contaminating the groundwater.

Wong said the data is being calculated by computers and a final result will be available early next week.

"So far, looking at the computer printouts, the last category (not an immediate health hazard) is a pretty small number. It's the first two (immediate health hazards) that are kicking in the big numbers," Wong said.

And if the preliminary results remain true, the county may be forced to order a building moratorium in the study area generally extended from Los Laureles Grade east to Camp Stefanie, west to the hills and north to the Robles del Rio area.

If Wong believes that the survey results indicate there is a serious health hazard posed by groundwater contamination from faulty septic tanks, then the county may apply for a state grant to pay for a new sewage system.

A probable condition of a state grant would be the moratorium, Wond said.

But he cannot say that a moratorium will be necessary until the final computer analysis is completed.

"I can't say at this time. At this time I just can't answer that," Wong said in response to a question on whether the moratorium is necessary.

The grant would pay 97.5 percent of the project costs with the county picking up the rest of the bill.

However, the grant would finance the project only to the property line. Individual residents would have to pay for the connections.

Wong said the state Water Resources Control Board has rated the Carmel Valley project at "44" out of the 50 projects it will fund this year.

That rating is for a grant just to pay for the phase two studies — hydrological and geological, Wong noted.

If a grant is approved, the project would still be one or two years down the line, Wong estimated in a meeting with residents as the study got underway in July.

At that time, Wong said he does not expect the results to indicate any immediate health hazard posed by groundwater contamination.

Eastwood, city settle dispute over building project only if he had a guarantee for approval once modifications are made.

In addition to the design, there are several oher points covered in the agreement.

The city agreed to buy for $5,000 a pedestrian easement from Fifth Avenue to the northern staircase access into the Eastwood project. The purchase is within the policies of the general plan which encourages the city to develop a series of pedestrian accesses throughout the commercial district in-between projects and streets.

Eastwood also must meet all conditions of the city water conservation ordinance, which basically states that no new business can open if it will consume more water than the previous use.

Water is available for the building itself, but each individual new office and retail shop opening must prove there is enough water supply before a use permit is granted.

Eastwood also has promised to retrofit the Hog's Breath to save water.

Eastwood has agreed to pay all the costs of a redesigned project. Earlier, it had been suggested as a possible compromise that the city help defray some of the expense of new plans.

The agreement also includes a clause that allows Eastwood to make some changes to the design, but those modifications must be approved by the city.

Eastwood's architect, George Brook-Kothlow, is now preparing final drawings. No schedule has been set for submission of the final plans and application for a demolition permit, Brook-Kothlow said.

CONTACTED at his Burbank offices, Eastwood obviously was pleased with the agreement worked out by his attorney, Brian Finegan.

"I think it was pretty much they gave me what I wanted and I gave them what they wanted," Eastwood said. "I guess you could call it a mutual handshake."

Eastwood conceeded that his compromises were "exactly" what the city had asked for in March, except for one key missing ingredient — guarantee of approval.

"The thing we really wanted and what they gave us is the guarantee," Eastwood said.

Eastwood added that the "climate" changed between March and now when two key opponents of the project — Planning Commissioner Sandy Swain, and City Councilwoman Helen Arnold — agreed that a compromise is more in order than a court battle.

"It was all done in an atmosphere of fair play," Eastwood said.

Asked whether the talk before the Carmel Business Association served as an impetus for the new round of talks, Eastwood said, "I don't know...I don't know about that. I'm just very pleased we came to an agreement."

Eastwood also had nothing but words of praise for City Administrator Doug Schmitz, who acted as the go-between. Often, Schmitz found himself in Eastwood's Carmel office going over plans, making suggestion and working out the preliminary details that led to the compromise.

"I'm glad we were all able to work together in a friendly atmosphere and stopped the war that was escalating," Eastwood added.

Like Eastwood, city officials who talked with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook called the agreement a good compromise for the benefit of both parties.

Councilman David Maradei said, "Basically Mr. Eastwood fullfilled the conditions the city placed on the projects. He met the concerns of the city."

Maradei believes the drawn out controversy was basically the result of a "lack of communication."

"He didn't have a channel of communication. I don't think he had a clear idea of municipal operations. It's unfortunate that channel of communication was not open sooner."

Maradei called the compromise a major step in improving relations between the business community and the council.

"I think we established the ability to talk to businesses and reach compromises in matters of mutual concern," Maradei said.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend said, "I feel it answers the concerns of both the planning commission and the city council.

"It's a compromise. I think both sides conceeded. The major things that concerned us were answered."

The mayor stressed that she wished the issue could have been settled without the court suit.

"I think it could have been settled by everyone sitting down and talking it over (earlier)," she said.

Councilman Robert Stephenson added: "We asked for four different things and he conceeded. We allowed him to build his building. I don't know if we made any concessions at all."

Council, water agencies may join in joint study

By NANCY HILLS

THE SEARCH continues on ways to settle the controversy between the Pebble Beach Community Service District and the Carmel Sanitary District on their respective reclamation plant projects and alternatives.

The Carmel City Council is scheduled to vote Nov. 26 to join a joint study of the two projects with the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, Carmel Sanitary District, the County of Monterey and possibly the Pebble Beach Community Service District.

Both the Carmel Sanitary District and the Pebble Beach Community Service District have proposed building sewage reclamation plants, the water from these plants to be used for watering golf courses on the peninsula. The amount of reclaimed water used on the golf courses will free the equivalent amount of potable water for other uses. The sale of the reclaimed water would partially pay for the reclamation plants.

The projection is that there is not enough of a market for the reclaimed water to support both plants, so the construction of the Pebble Beach reclamation plant would virtually eliminate the need for the CSD to build a larger plant.

The draft of the scope of work for the joint study agreement the city council will vote on states that the PBCSD plant would supply approximately 600 ac. ft. of water with an estimated cost of $11 million. According to the same source, the CSD project would produce approxiamtely 1,576 ac. ft. from April to October with an estimated capital cost of $13.7 million.

According to Stan Kawa, PBCSD general manager, the Pebble Beach project would be paid for by an assessment of the unsubdivided property within Pebble Beach, the majority of which is owned by the Pebble Beach Co. Other funds would come from the sale of reclaimed water.

The CSD project, which has already been designed, would also be funded through the sale of the reclaimed water, but CSD was unable to obtain state and federal grants to build the plant. Alternative sources of funding, such as a 20-year bond, may have to be used.

The CSD claims it can supply the reclaimed water needs for golf courses and open space for the entire water district. The PBSCD claims its project can supply the water needs for all Pebble Beach golf courses. Pebble Beach golf courses make up a major portion of the reclaimed water needs in the district.

Both projects have certified EIRs. However, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Carmel Sanitary District have joined in a lawsuit against the PBCSD, claiming the EIR was not properly noticed and that the district did not investigate alternatives to the sewage treatment plant.

The PBCSD will join in the joint study agreement, Kawa said, if the lawsuit is dropped and the water management district gives PBCSD a permit to build the plant.

JESSIE DAVIS was a jolly man, who spent much of his working life taking care of the maintenance needs of the former Woods School and current River School for the Carmel Unified School District. When Davis unfortunately passed away recently members of the Carmel Webelos Den 5 decided to do something special for a special friend. Since Davis enjoyed flowers so much, the Webelos chose to transform a neglected, littered piece of dirt outside the door of the River School multi-purpose room into "Jessie's Garden." The parent's club raised the money for the plaque and Cody and Jackson Reese designed the butterfly memorial to commemorate the garden. The Webelos spend a lot of time weeding and planting flowers in the garden. The flowers are donated by an "anonymous friend." Boronda erosion project tops river agency meeting

THE CARMEL River Advisory Committee will meet at its regularly scheduled meeting 10 a.m. Monday, Nov. 23 in The Crossroads Community Room.

The committee is scheduled to review the progress of the Boronda erosion control project, targeted in October as the Carmel River Management Program's highest priority. The CRAC staff has prepared a rough timeline for the implementation of the 1986 Boronda erosion project.

In other business the committee will update the progress of the irrigation program around the Cal-Am wells, the willow-planting program along the river banks, and the steelhead resources.

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District director Dick Heuer is expected to attend the meeting. Heuer expressed concern in the November water management district board meeting that CRAC and the water management board were not communicating on what the goals of the committee should be.

Which reclamation project is best?

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors also approved spending up to $25,000 to participate in a joint study on the comparative feasibility of the Pebble Beach Community Services District (PBCSD) and separate Carmel Sanitary District (CSD) reclamation projects.

The plan approved Tuesday is for all agencies involved in a lawsuit over the Pebble Beach project to participate in the study: the county, Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and the city of Carmel.

PBCSD contends that its $9-$11 million, 600,000 gallon daily reclaimed project should proceed while the other agencies believe that the CSD-proposed larger 2.4 million gallons daily plan would better serve the needs of the area.

Both projects would sell reclaimed water to irrigate the golf courses in the area, freeing drinking water for other uses.

Instead of by appointment

Mid Valley fire board may go election route

By MICHAEL GARDNER

RESIDENTS of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District — reeling from an internal dispute that has resulted in the impending Jan. 31 resignation of its board of directors — may soon be able to select their own representatives to the board.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors, in the wake of a dispute that led to an "either the board quits or we do" ultimatum from a majority of the volunteer firefighters, has under consideration a proposal to make the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District Board of Directors elected positions.

If supervisors choose, they can order an election, probably for April, to see if residents want to select their own directors or if the voters would rather keep the current process intact whereby the fifth district supervisor nominates fire board candidates to the full board of supervisors for appointment.

Supervisors on Tuesday, Nov. 26 are to consider setting a public hearing on the proposal.

The fire board in a special meeting Nov. 14 before a crowd of about 35, which included Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, county Fire Warden Tom Perkins and County Counsel Ralph Kuchler, announced that they would resign effective Jan. 31.

The two-month lead time will give the directors a chance to hire a new fire chief and get him acquainted with the district while also providing Strasser Kauffman with an opportunity to find replacements without a rushed deadline hanging over her head.

Strasser Kauffman made a point of saying that she welcomes all applicants, who will go through a screening process and personal interviews with her before a finalist is nominated to the full board of supervisors.

She also added that any of the resigning directors — Ed Haber, Steve Thigpen, Dick Krueger and Douglas Despard — can apply for reappointment.

Judging from the after-meeting talk, volunteers would welcome Thigpen and Krueger returning to the board.

"Right now, I'd say no. But that's tonight," said Thigpen. Added Krueger: "I simply do not. If I don't it won't be for any reason other than I'm tired."

A fifth director to replace Brian Smith, who resigned earlier this year, is expected to be appointed by Strasser Kauffman soon.

Most of the volunteers had threatened to walk out Nov. 12 unless the board resigned.

BUT IN a meeting that night Krueger made an impassioned plea for volunteers to delay their scheduled walkout and also presented the firefighters with a letter stating that all directors would resign effective March 31.

DIRECTOR Dick Krueger was the mediator in the dispute, being able to stave off a volunteer walkout while a compromise was reached in the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District.

The volunteers agreed to reschedule their walkout for Friday, Nov. 15 to provide time for a compromise letter of resignation.

The board in a unanimous vote Nov. 14 agreed to the conditions proposed by the volunteers, as written in the following statement:

• "The date of the board's resignation will be Jan. 31, 1986 rather than March 31, 1986. We have been assured that this will provide sufficient time for the present board to meet their current responsibilities.

• "The resignations will be unconditional.

• "An ad hoc committee or observer, mutually agreeable to both sides, will be appointed by Supervisor Strasser Kauffman to oversee and arbitrate differences during the transition period from now until the date of the board's resignation.

• "This letter will be signed by all parties and delivered to Supervisor Strasser Kauffman by 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15, 1985."

The date was moved from Dec. 31 to Jan. 31 to give the board time to find a new fire chief and for Strasser Kauffman to interview candidates for appointment to the fire board.

Meanwhile, volunteers Bob Rice and Tom Powers will work with the board to find a new fire chief. Lynn Caldwell has been acting chief while the search is underway.

The fire district has been without a full-time chief since Dan Guice was fired about six months ago. His firing prompted outrage from the volunteers and Guice was rehired under Caldwell. Guice since has left to join the department in Clovis in Fresno County. Caldwell apparently has said he is not interested in becoming chief.

The dispute continued to boil, however, as volunteers expressed deep concern over Haber's habit of responding to calls with red lights and sirens blaring in one of his several Quail Lodge vehicles.

It is no secret that the volunteers and Guice did not appreciate Haber's first-hand involvement in the district's day-to-day affairs.

In defense of Haber, he and other residents have said his responses have helped those in need of quick fire or emergency medical aid. Haber also has helped raise hundreds of thousands of dollars for the district.

AT FIRST, it appeared that Haber may renege on his offer to resign.

Haber pointed out that the terms of two directors, Despard and Krueger, expire Dec. 31. And that coupled with Smith's replacement would mean that there would be three new directors.

Haber suggested that he, personally, stay on the board because otherwise an entirely new set of directors would have to learn the job without benefit of an experienced peer.

In addition, Haber said it would be unfair for an outgoing board to select the new chief. In his prepared statement read at the outset of the meeting, Haber said:

"The primary responsibility of a director of a fire district board is to exact policy, which is in the best interest of the citizens and residents of the district.

"The number one task is to protect human life. The unrest that this department is experiencing saddens me.

"After conferring with fellow directors, it is my suggestion to move towards a solution of this current situation that I ask Fifth District Supervisor, Mrs. Karin Strasser Kauffman, to appoint a director for the vacancy that presently exists and directors for the vacancies that will be open on Jan 1, 1986.

"Then the new fire board and two volunteer fire representatives will have full opportunity to select, name and assist a new fire chief in managing and directing the day-to-day operations of this department.

"This is in the spirit and commitment to preserving a volunteer department and allowing an orderly transition for a new chief.

"I personally have served Carmel Valley for 25 years and feel that my experience is

"My feeling is based on full knowledge of he current emotions and criticisms being veled at both me and my fellow directors. I m a concerned citizen and I will continue to edicate myself to my fellow residents and eighbors in this fire district."

But Haber's mood later shifted as the vening progressed.

Strasser Kauffman was the first to address he audience, assuring that fire protection ervices would continue if the volunteers alk out.

Although saying, "I'm not here to tell anybody what to do," it was obvious that the supervisor was frustrated by the controversy.

'I AM very distressed that this is happening. It has to come to a stop. It is unacceptable to me to have it happen in my district.

"There is a great division in this community...my telephone has not stopped ringing," she said.

"It is absolutely incomprehensible to me that you've had a week and still have not been able to work this thing out," Strasser Kauffman said.

Carmel challenges Spanish Bay conveyor belt

PEBBLE BEACH Co. should not be allowed to use a conveyor system to haul sand from Sawmill Gulch to its Spanish Bay resort site until proof is provided that there is no satisfactory fill material available on site or from other projects on the Monterey Peninsula.

That will be the basic premise of a city of Carmel challenge to certification of the environmental impact report (EIR) for the conveyor system that will haul 530,000 cubic yards of sand from Sawmill Gulch to the Spanish Bay resort two miles away in Del Monte Forest.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors will conduct a public hearing on the EIR at 3 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

The council — long an opponent of the 270-room hotel, 80-condominium and 18-hole golf course complex at Spanish Bay — has joined with several Pacific Grove residents to fight certification of the EIR for the conveyor system.

According to city Planning Director Diane White, a key provision has been overlooked in the Coastal Commission use permit for the Spanish Bay resort.

Pebble Beach Co. continually has said that the Coastal Commission requires the conveyor system because there has been such a public outcry over the original plan to haul sand by trucks.

But White points to the use permit as arguments against the company's statements. The use permit states:

"First priority shall be given to receipt of surplus sand from current off-site excavations, specifically including the Presidio of Monterey. This permit authorizes stockpiling of such materials at Spanish Bay, subject to the approval of the executive director as to siting of such stockpiles.

"Second priority shall be given to deeper on-site excavations at Spanish Bay or other on-site design measures which could reduce the 530,000 cubic yard fill importation requirement.

"Only in the event that the above measures are not sufficient for completion of the golf course and dune rehabilitation program may the Sawmill Gulch mining site(s) be reopened and deepened," the permit states.

The city contends that the EIR does not adequately address the complaint that the company has not exhausted other sources for the sand, as required by the Coastal Commission use permit.

IN THE response to the city of Carmel's question, the Pebble Beach Co.'s consultant wrote in the EIR that:

"The county has already given approval to excavate sand from the Sawmill Gulch site; that approval is not the issue for consideration of this conveyor system.

"The proposed conveyor system was a requirement of the Coastal Commission for transporting sand. A use permit from the county is required for this project."

The city has numerous other concerns, as do the neighbors who live in the Del Monte Park area of Pacific Grove.

Most of the concerns relate to an alleged inadequacy in noise protection, safety, destruction of trees for the system and the lack of exploration of other alternatives.

THE DUNES that soon may become the site of the Spanish Bay resort complex in Pebble Beach continue to be controversial. The city of Carmel, in its challenge of the conveyor system to haul sand from Sawmill Gulch to Spanish Bay, says the environmental impact report ignores a Coastal Commission requirement to first explore sources from the Presidio of Monterey or at Spanish Bay before excavating Sawmill Gulch. Valley floodway residents still not able to build

CARMEL VALLEY residents who live in the floodway still will not be allowed to expand their homes or build on lots of record.

The Monterey County Planning Commission Nov. 13 rejected a proposed amendment to the Carmel Valley floodway ordinance that would have allowed additions to homes or new residences to be built if the owners could prove that the development would not worsen the flood danger to other homes in the area.

Supervisors Oct. 15 sent the issue to the planning commission for review.

In a separate matter, it's back to square one for Majid Mahroom's plans to develop 36 condominiums in High Meadows.

The commission rejected Mahroom's proposal for the development on about two acres in the area southeast of Highway 1 and Carpenter Road.

Mahroom's proposal included seven three-story buildings with a swimming pool and clubhouse.

Although the property is zoned for a density to allow 36 condominiums, the planning commission agreed with the several protesting neighborhood associations that the project is too big for the site.

Most of the property owners said they did not oppose building there, but did not like the density proposed.

Carmel City Council again faces ice cream albatross

TRY AS they might, the Carmel City Council cannot shake the ice cream albatross.

Just a few months after an application to sell ice cream cones in town was denied, the Carmel City Council has before it yet another plan for ice cream sales.

This time it's Michael Lajigian of the Ocean Avenue candy store called Chocolate Dreams who wants to sell ice cream.

Lajigian proposes to sell ice cream in the back of the store in throw-away containers to save water. But he says that only larger quantities would be allowed for take-out sales.

The city in its earlier denial of the Carmel Creamery restaurant basically said that the sale of ice cream constitutes the creation of another "eating establishment" — the type of business the city is trying fervently to reduce.

Lajigian's appeal to the city council will be reviewed when it meets in a special session at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26 at city hall.

In another public hearing, the council will review an application from Earl Walls for a rezoning of his property on the west side of Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Fifth avenues.

Walls wants his site to be rezoned from multiple-family-residential (R-4) to service-commercial (SC). His application originally was scheduled to be reviewed at the same time the council heard a similar request from neighbor Joe McEldowney, but Walls asked for a delay on his site.

Walls originally received concept approval from the planning commission for a six-unit condominium complex on the property. But Walls did not push ahead with the project and a year later the city adopted the concept of a specific plan for the R-4 zone.

Under zoning guidelines in the proposed specific plan, Walls would be allowed only two condominiums while the SC zoning would give him the option of trying for a use permit for up to four units.

In other action, the council is to:

• Consider a request from the Salvation Army to place the traditional Christmas kettles throughout town from Nov. 29 to Dec. 24.

• Appoint members to the reorganized Business License and Code Review Board and to the Policy Action Committee of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

• Adopt on final reading an ordinance that prohibits newspaper racks downtown. Papers will be distributed in city-provided wooden stands.

ROBERT O'TOOLE of Denise Duffy and Associates surveyed the downtown area as part of a major zoning study now underway. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Statistical survey teams gathering data on Carmel

THE CARMEL Implementation Study got underway this week as survey teams from Denise Duffy and Associates began to map and statistically categorize the types of businesses in town.

The study will be conducted in three phases: data gathering, recommendations for new programs and policies, and the environmental effects of any adopted programs and policies.

Although the study will be in phases, completion of the entire project is not expected until late summer.

The first phase got underway Nov. 14 as survey teams walked the commercial area and physically counted all shops and what kinds of businesses there are.

There also was an extensive review of the city's more than 1,000 business licenses.

The consultants on Nov. 18 will start with random personal interviews with merchants on information about such issues as hours of operation, number of employees, parking and truck delivery.

The firm also will gather comprehensive information about parking and traffic through counters and personal interviews with parkers.

The survey of parkers will run from Nov. 18 through Dec. 6.

The survey is to learn who is parking where, why the driver is in town and how much time they spend here.

After the data is gathered, Denise Duffy and Associates will prepare a "cumulative impact analysis" of growth in Carmel based on "economics, traffic, visual impacts and land use."

A complete report on phase one should be completed by Jan. 21.

Phase two will encompass the programs and policies the city may want to begin based on the statistical data available.

Phase three is an environmental impact report for the various new programs and policies the city may implement.

Needs of Monterey County subject of growth workshop

A STUDY released this fall that indicates Monterey County has nowhere near the housing, streets, sewage capacity or water supply to meet the growth demands into the next century will be the subject of a half-day workshop Friday, Nov. 22.

The Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) is conducting the workshop from 8 a.m. until noon at the Monterey Conference Center.

AMBAG will present its findings from the recent study of water resources, sea water intrusion, wastewater treatment, highways and general plan buildout for housing.

Frank Hotchkiss, director of comprehensive planning for the Southern California Association of Governments will speak on "Planning for the Future Within Today's Restraints."

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. for the free workshop. For more information, call the AMBAG office at 624-2117.

Beach fires on forestry agenda

THE BURNING issue before the Carmel Forestry Commission next week is fires on the beach.

The commission will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 26 at city hall.

During the session, commissioners will discuss a policy recommendation to the council on fires on Carmel Beach.

City Forester Gary Kelly explained that the commission would like public input on whether to ban fires, prohibit fires in certain areas of the beach, or adopt a policy that would require a permit for a fire.

In other action, the commission is to review plans for planting trees along the beach banks to replace those lost in the winter storms of 1982-83.

Joins lame-duck board

Carmel attorney appointed to Valley board

ANNE MCGOWAN, an attorney and six-year resident of the district, is a new director of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District.

ANNE MCGOWAN has been appointed to the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection Board of Directors, Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman has announced.

McGowan will be joining a lame-duck board where the four incumbents have announced they will resign effective Jan. 31 because of disputes with most of the volunteer firefighters. (See related story, this issue.)

McGowan, a partner in the Carmel law firm of DeLay, Laredo and McGowan, has lived in the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District for about six years.

Responding to a question about why she is becoming involved in the fire district especially in view of the controversy there, McGowan said:

"I live here. We tell our children this too. You do have an obligation. You're part of society. You have to give back. You can't take all of the time."

McGowan said she has stayed out of the problems up until now.

"I really haven't been in the middle of all this at all. I haven't talked to any board member or volunteer at all," she said. "What I know about the fire board is what I read in the papers."

McGowan's professional affiliations include the the Monterey County Bar Association, Monterey County Trial Lawyer's Association and Monterey County Women Lawyers' Association.

Her community service includes: current president of the Hidden Valley Board of Trustees; current secretary to the mental health advisory committtee for Community Hospital; past director and member of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association; former chairwoman of the Central Mission Trail Chapter of the American Heart Association; and member of the Carmel Valley Trails Association.

"She's really in my opinion the ideal person in this slot considering the recent crisis," Strasser Kauffman said. "She's a strong, independent woman who is not fazed by problems. She is a problem solver."

Strasser Kauffman sets series of open houses

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman has announced that she will be holding a series of community meetings or open houses throughout the Fifth District.

"I want to provide an opportunity for working residents who cannot attend our regular Tuesday public sessions at the courthouse in Salinas. In addition, some residents are still hesitant to contact their government with requests or complaints," Strasser Kauffman said. "In that case, I will come to them and we can arrange to talk in their own neighborhoods."

This month, Strasser Kauffman will be meeting with residents in the Cachagua area Nov. 23 at the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Company in Princess Camp from 2 to 4 p.m.

"We picked a Saturday to begin with in each neighborhood. I hope that people in the various communities will find the meeting times convenient and will bring their concerns to me.

Dancing through the decades

IF YOU'VE ever wanted to Charleston, Twist or Frug your way through the holidays these are the weeks to do it.

On Friday, Nov. 22 you'll want to put on your saddle shoes, roll your Luckies into your T-shirt sleeve or put on that hoop skirt for a 50s sock hop, while the next evening you'll want to go a little more sophisticated with 1930s-era tux and evening gown, then finally a week later, on Saturday, Nov. 30, it'll be time to dredge out those old hippie beads and paisley ties and scarves (you know you've still got 'em!) or your old high school letter jacket for a 60s style romp. Heavy, man.

No, we haven't all taken leave of our senses and gone "Back to the Future," it's just nostalgia time on the old peninsula as various groups host 30s, 50s and 60s nights, complete with live bands, refreshments and all the trimmings of the respective eras. And here they are:

BE THERE OR BE SQUARE

It's being dubbed "Enchantment Under the Sea," and features two sea otters wearing saddle shoes bopping the night away. That would be the Friday Nov. 22 50s-style dance at the Monterey Bay Aquarium in a benefit for the Community Boards Program of the Monterey Peninsula. The John Silver Band plays from 8 to 11:30 p.m. Get on the stick on this one because they're selling only advanced tickets. For more info call 394-1992.

COTTON CLUB COMES TO MONTEREY

In celebration of Monterey Sheraton's first anniversary and to benefit the Rape Crisis Center, co-sponsors KWAV-94 FM and the Sheraton will host the Cotton Club, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 23 in the hotel's ballroom. The ballroom wil be transformed into a '30s-style nightclub, complete with Art Deco motif, late-night menu, no-host bar and continuous live music on two stages. Musical entertainment includes Papa Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers, The Ace Hill Trio, vocalese jazz group Just Friends, and the Broadway Blues Band. All proceeds from the $5 tickets go to the rape crisis center. Tickets can be purchased from the hotel's front desk or at the door. For more information call 649-4234.

NERDS OF THE WORLD UNITE!

Surfers, jocks, cool guys, brains and cheerleaders, get ready for the "Big Chill" Dance, Saturday, Nov. 30 at the Hyatt Regency Monterey ballroom. The action starts at 8 p.m. and closes out at about 1 a.m. The dance will feature live entertainment from "Joyride," with hit songs from the '60s and early '70s, as well as a hip dance and "Twister" contests. Prizes will be given for biggest and best nerds of the night. There will be a glorious array of junk food, pop, beer, wine and specialty cocktails like the "Draft Card" and "Slide Rule." Break out the hippie beads, letter jackets and heavily taped black-frame nerd glasses for this nerdy event. For more information call 372-1234.

IS IT HALLEY'S, HAILEY'S OR HOLLEY'S?

Robert Aiken, Carmel astrologer-metaphysician, will speak on Halley's Comet and what it means during a free lecture from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 24 at the Community Room at the Crossroads. For more information call 625-1691.

The event is open to the public, but advance reservations are required. Congressional Medal of Honor winner Gen. Jimmy Doolittle is honorary chairman and an original cover art for the catalog was donated by Hank "Dennis the Menace" Ketchum. Tickets, at $50, or $20 for auction and reception only, are not available at the door. For information contact Wil Goodrich at 458-6317.

CARMEL HIGH MATH WHIZ

Anne Brocchini, a Carmel High School senior, has qualified for the finals of the University of California at Santa Barbara 1985 Mathematics Prize Competition. In the preliminary rounds of the competition Brocchini competed against 3,092 other top math students and was only one of 233 students to reach the final round of competition. Top scorers in the final round win cash prizes and have the opportunity to receive UCSB Undergraduate Fellowships to the university in 1986.

Martha MacAdam Sawhill, now of Alexandria, Va., daughter of Anne Scott Sawhill of Carmel Valley, was married to Andrew Roy Ivy of Washington D.C. The bride graduated from York School in Monterey and University of Oregon in Eugene. The bridegroom graduated from Canby High School, Canby, Ore., and the University of Oregon. The ceremony was held at Gerlinger Hall on the university campus, with the reception at the Eugene Country Club. Both are employed in Washington D.C. and will make their home there.

HARVEST FAIR IN VALLEY

This year's Harvest Fair, an annual event hosted by the Women's Association of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 22 and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23 at the church, one mile east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road. Included in the sale items will be quilts, jams and jellies, pies, cakes, holiday decorations and "De Judge's Fudge." Hot coffee and doughnuts will also be available.

COUNTY SYMPHONY GUILD'S SECOND PREVIEW

The second preview by Maestro Clark E. Suttle for the members of the Monterey County Symphony Guild in its 30th (Pearl) year was held Tuesday, Nov. 12, at Del Mesa Carmel after a salad luncheon there, brought by each member.

Juliana Markova will be guest pianist in Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1. On the program also are Ward's Jubilation Overture and Beethoven's Symphony No. 7. New Music Director and Conductor Suttle brought alive the themes and variations of this exciting concert by playing some of the scores. Suttle also gave the background of the composers and a sketch of the style and working habits of these gifted musicians, with an inimitable humor and obvious love for his subject which was contagious to the audience.

Gene Andrews, president of the guild, announced that the Golden Domino Tournament had raised "a freckle under $9,000" to benefit the guild. She urged members or friends who dined at the Carmel Plaza Restaurant in November to sign the Monterey County Symphony Guild's name to each bill since Ken Spilfogel, owner, has offered to give 20 percent of each check properly signed to the guild. The Christmas Dance at the Beach Club will be chaired by Susan Faber.

The hospitality committee for the luncheon was Ruth Barker, Nihla Knight and Dorothy Wick, who saw that each member's specialty salad and dessert graced the long serving table centered with a beautiful fall flower arrangement by Irene Mackenzie.

Members are anxious to hear the special program on Jan. 23 being prepared as a benefit by popular chanteuse, Marie Therese Taylor, at Sunset Center in Carmel.

OF HAIRY BELLIES AND POISON IVY

What do "Crown Jewels," Hairy Belly, Poison Ivy, Box Cars and Flycatcher/Banker's Tile have in common? The answer was found at the 22nd annual Monterey Peninsula Invitational Golden Domino Tournament Saturday, Nov. 9, a benefit for the Monterey County Symphony Guild.

The invitational was sanctioned by the International Domino Association, affiliated for Master Points Award.

Devotees of domino, 58 teams competed. The team coming from the farthest distance were Bea and Jim Murphy, Huntington Beach, who have been coming for years. The team of Edwin A. Meserve and David Duncan came from Los Angeles.

Among the faithful players were Roderick Dewar, Graeme MacKenzie and John Roland, director of this year's contest, who have competed in all 22 Golden Domino Tournaments.

Mrs. John A. Andrews, Jr., president of the symphony guild, welcomed the competitors at a special reception Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Bialek of Carmel. The location of this reception for the players the night before the tournament is a yearly secret until the day before the contest.

Entertaining at the pre-domino reception on the Bialeks' grand piano were favorites Marie-Theresa Taylor, chanteuse, who will appear in the symphony guild benefit at Sunset Center Jan. 23, 1986, and Dick La Salle, who will again make lively danceable music for the Christmas Ball to be held at the Beach Club Dec. 13.

The Golden Domino Tournament began 22 years ago at the Monterey County Fairgrounds with Mary Shaw and Richard Osborne as chairmen.

Shoot for the stars

IT'S ALL in the stars, particularly for restaurants, and if there are two people in this area that shoot for them, it's Ted Balestreri and Bert Cutino, owners of Restaurants Central.

This time, they've aimed at five stars with The Gold Fork, formerly known as the Butcher Shop, on Ocean Avenue. At least that's the word from Cutino and Don Boston, vice president of operations for Restaurants Central, the corporation that owns The Gold Fork.

It's not that I haven't mentioned it before, or that it wasn't noticeable, but the Butcher Shop (one of the many names the place has sported,) has been remodeled from head to toe, inside and outside, conceptually and literally. According to Boston, it should be open this week.

The Butcher Shop, billed as a steak house, was known to Carmelites for its rather, shall we say, unusual exterior decor. The fireplace, or fire actually, in the center of a brick wall that could be seen from the sidewalk could have been easily mistaken as Carmel's eternal flame war memorial.

The exterior is now more of what Cutino calls an English/French country-style with real windows, planters and everything. The interior has been switched around, the colors considerably lightened and the walls hung with European tapestries. There still is a fireplace, but it is now on the inside where, I suppose, fireplaces should be.

The food, Cutino said, is designed to a more up-scale concept, combining Italian/French classical, traditional dishes with the food products of Northern California.

Entrees include dishes like Grilled Veal Porterhouse Perigourdine, "tender milk-fed veal glazed with truffle sauce," or Veal Chateau Bourquetiere, "filets of veal, oven broiled." There are also the eminently more pronouncable Cultered Abalone, Lobster Americain, Chicken Homard, Tournedos Castroville and more. There are even steaks still on the menu from "certified black Angus beef" and special pasta dishes like duck ravioli.

Preparation of these dishes is in the hands of Dave Varner, formerly the sous chef for the Sardine Factory and now the chef for The Gold Fork.

And talk about competitive spirit! When I asked Boston if this restaurant was going to be competition for the Sardine Factory he answered, "I hope so."

OWNER BERT CUTINO, Assistant Director Chef George Karyszyn, and manager Russ Harris of The Gold Fork — once-upon-a-time The Butcher Shop — are not watching the pot boil but the new waiters for the restaurant. The Gold Fork is scheduled to open this week after closing in June for a major overhaul.

The Gold Fork will have some difficulty competing in the wine category simply because it does not have the room for

CAPTAIN COOPER School students were blessed with sunny weather and no wind as they toured the nearly century-old lighthouse in Big Sur last week. The lighthouse, which is only open by special arrangements, is now automated. Above, Ranger Steffani Jarrett directs the way while once at the top she pauses to give the students a history lesson (bottom photo). The view from the top of the lighthouse has no rival and mom Celia Sanborn took advantage of the opportunity to snap a photo of son Branham. wine storage, Boston said, but it does feature a good selection of mainly California wines. Many of those were extracted from the Sardine Factory wine list, he added.

The Gold Fork is more than just a name. Diners will be presented with a gold fork to use during their meal, Boston said.

Long-time local residents will recognize Gold Fork manager Russ Harris, former partner of the men's clothing store Rudy-Harris, Ltd. Dressed in his tuxedo, Harris will probably outshine even the gold forks for elegance.

HOME AGAIN, HOME AGAIN

Carmel is NOT where I would have assumed I could pick-up a genuine Balinese pig-mask. But there you go, never assume anything.

Masterpiece Antiques, a new shop in The Crossroads, has those and a lot more.

Owner John Carnine has spent the last 13 years in Bali, Indonesia where he still owns an antique shop. Through the years, he said he has collected and sent the traditional dance masks back to United States for storage until the day he opened a shop here.

"I have all the characters, from the large pig masks to the delicate female and male dancing masks," he said.

The pig mask may be a misnomer in this country, since it's actually a wild boar's head we're talking about here. The masks are carved from wood, most of them decorated and painted and some are up to 200 years old, Carnine said. They all were used in the traditional dances called "toping luchu," which translated means "funny mask dance." There are also puppet characters used in puppet dancing (puppet dancing was depicted in the movie "The Year of Living Dangerously.")

But masks are not the only items that Carnine said he carries in his shop.

"I have Chinese porcelain pieces up to 1,000 years old from the Sung dynasty (10th to 12th century) and a lot of the blue and white Ming porcelain from the 14th and 15th century," he said. "I have a lot of celadon (a type of sea-green colored pottery) and heavier ceramics."

The shop has Chinese furniture, weavings and rugs as well as ikat weavings from the island of Sumba (east of Bali) big enough for a wall hanging or small enough for a scarf, Carnine said.

Many of his items are of museum quality, he added, and

Never a dull moment

By ROSEMARY MONTGOMERY
Carmel River School Principal

Carmel River Elementary School is a busy nd exciting place. I can attest to the fact that ve never experience a dull moment! Four undred and twenty-five children create an nergy level that doesn't allow the adults to t down. River School is a wonderful place o rejuvenate and to experience a good kind f tiredness at the end of a day.

Our school population has been steadily ncreasing over the past three years. This ear, we have 17 regular classroom teachers. Ve also have four additional teachers who pecialize in the areas of speech and anguage, special education, gifted education nd music. The River School faculty provides n excellent educational program and a hole lot of caring.

Our support staff, 13 dedicated people, rovide all of the services which allow the ducational program to run smoothly. They un the library and office, clean the uildings, offer enrichment classes, and assist ur teachers in the preparation of materials nd other clerical tasks.

We are fortunate to be able to offer a umber of enrichment programs to our udents. District funds provide for assroom music instruction for all of our students and instrumental music instruction for our fourth and fifth graders. Extra state funds make it possible for us to provide specialists in art, movement, and P.E. as part of our School Improvement Plan. In addition, our PTA sponsors a popular foreign language program. French and Spanish classes meet before and after school.

River School enjoys the support of two very active groups, both involving parents. Each group has a very different function. The River School PTA raises funds, provides volunteers, and sponsors special programs for students and parents. The River School Site Council helps made decisions concerning the educational program and budget as they relate to the School Improvement Program.

The PTA and the School Site Council are examples of the high level of parent involvement we enjoy at River School. The PTA Executive Board alone has more than 25 members. The School Site Council is made up of the entire faculty, a classified representative and an equal number of parents.

River School adults work with a wonderful group of children. They bring to us good minds, active imaginations, and all of the levels of development you would expect to find in children not quite five through children going on 11. They provide us with a challenge and an opportunity to give our best. We ask for their best in return.

Research indicates that a successful school must have certain elements. One of those elements is a high level of parent involvement. Another is a dedicated, enthusiastic faculty. A third is a high-quality support staff. Add those elements to a group of bright, eager students and you have Carmel River School, a place for people to learn and to grow.

(This first article is an introduction to Carmel River School. Subsequent articles will focus on each grade level and the people who make each grade level work.)

> 'River School adults work with a wonderful group of children. They bring to us good minds, active imaginations and all the levels of development you would expect to find in children.'

THE VALLEY SAGE

BY VICTORIA ANDREWS

Going gently into the night

ONE OF THE paradigms used by social scientists to measure the success of a society is to observe how that culture treats its children, its sick and its dying. Until recently, American society has been woefully lacking on the last count.

Fortunately, that condition is changing, albeit slowly; the hushed tones of denial are being supplanted by open and honest discussions about death, the fears and needs of the dying as well as those of their families.

The Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula epitomizes the long-overdue attitude which would erase the taboos from the process of death, a process after all as natural as living.

When last heard from about six months ago, it appeared that the Hospice itself was on its last legs. In a surprise announcement last April, its board of directors stated that closing the inpatient facility was imminent within two weeks.

The community responded overwhelmingly to news of the crisis. Hospice Executive Director Judith Herrmann credits the survival of the wonderfully homey lodging to the spontaneous financial rescue by the local citizenry — as well as to the dedication of the staff, many of whom stayed on even without pay through the worst times.

Since that bleak day in April, the Hospice is back on its feet financially, thanks largely to Herrmann's managerial wizardry. She demurs that she sees herself only as a catalyst between the board and the staff, but the evidence suggests strongly that Herrmann is the wellspring of its changed fortunes.

Since she was hired as executive director last June, Herrmann has cut operating expenses by $32,000; she redesigned the modus operandi of the board so it was freed from day-to-day management decisions, and she has reorganized the staff and revitalized its morale. Some catalyst.

Regular meetings with the staff provide an opportunity for questions and problems to be aired and solved. Open communication is the hallmark of Herrmann's operating style, and it is apparent that she encourages her staff to do likewise.

Herrmann is well-acquainted with the managerial aspects of health care, as she has also been executive director of the Visiting Nurses' Association since April 1982. She feels that the tie-in between the Hospice and the VNA is a logical one, as both are non-profit programs which utilize skilled professionals to treat people at home with a wide variety of therapies.

The Hospice focus, however, remains on the terminally ill. It has both a home care program and a six-bed inpatient facility for those whose needs cannot be met at home.

A visit to the tranquil sanctuary revealed a spirit of dedication throughout the staff, a visceral sense of compassion among those who care for people through their last days. A commitment to making those days have a very special quality was evident in every staff member I saw.

Admissions coordinator Kathy Fielding explained, "You just give 100 percent...I know I'm going to get attached [to the dying patient], but that's part of it...I take care of myself later."

Lena Darroch, manager of the Hospice, added, "Oncology nurses and hospice people are the best in the world."

I have no doubt she is right. The extraordinarily demanding work requires a degree of emotional strength that is far from the indifference of those who have seen too much to be affected. It is the strength to give all, to touch all aspects of another's life, and to withold no personal resources in the comforting of others.

Fielding and Darroch recalled an incident involving a heavy young man with terminal liver cancer whose physical movements were severely limited by his acute abdominal distension. He longed to be taken into the jacuzzi, and meeting challenges is what the staff is all about. Assisted by his wife, they managed to maneuver the patient into the jacuzzi, where he at last experienced relief by becoming weightless in the water. He laughed and cried with joy, and such was his relief that hot-tubbing became part of his routine for his remaining days.

People who are dying are very honest, said Fielding, who like Darroch was an oncology nurse before joining the Hospice.

"Many people make a special effort to get it together with their families before death, and this effort requires a special measure of tenderness from the support staff."

Pain management and emotional support are the two primary reasons for the inpatient facility. Cancer pain is different from other types of pain and often spreads throughout the body. It is highly resistant to most medication, and morphine is usually the most effective drug.

The emotional support is less easy to define, though the candor and warmth of the staff has much to do with the psychological therapy. Patients may bring whatever they like with them, from favorite paintings to treasured pets to — in one case — a needlepoint pillow bearing the message "Screw The Golden Years"!

At present, operating funds come from three sources. Health insurances, to include Medicare and only four or five others, pay what the Hospice charges the patient, but the money available is less than the cost to the Hospice of round-the-clock care. Community support is crucial to its continuing financial health, and Herrmann hopes that it will be possible to raise sufficient money for a substantial endowment fund, the interest of which would be the basic operating capital. Coupled with continuing gifts from local philanthropists, she believes that such an endowment would ensure the survival and possible expansion of the Hospice, which is one of only 42 similar facilities in the U.S.

"The Hospice belongs to the community," affirmed Herrmann. "The bottom line is that with community support we can make it."

Naturally she neglected to include herself as a vital ingredient, but both the staff and the board agree that this sparkling, brainy, articulate woman is truly the secret behind the recovery of the Hospice.

Carmel Valley fire board will quit as of Jan. 31

Volunteers issued their ultimatum for the first time Nov. 6 and it was publicly announced Nov. 9.

"I do not want the volunteers to walk out. They are irreplaceable to this district, (but) if the volunteers walk out the services for the district are covered."

Strasser Kauffman explained that the district has a "master mutual aid agreement" whereby firefighters from other areas will respond to an emergency. "There's no need to panic," she said.

There had been some discussion by directors to pay for replacements until more volunteers could be recruited. That idea later was dropped.

Strasser Kauffman added that if some directors resigned leaving the board without a quorum, the district still would be governed by the by-laws.

"These laws don't go away if your directors resign," she said. However, the no-quorum board could not take any binding action.

Strasser Kauffman did say that the fire district is an independent operation and it's a "legal impossibility" for her to step in and order changes.

Krueger then made a motion to accept the volunteers' counterproposal to the original board offer to resign. Thigpen seconded the motion followed by discussion on the date, which finally resulted in the two sides agreeing to a Jan. 31 resignation.

Despard said he had "mixed emotions" about how to vote. "I don't want to stay on. I'd like to be at home where I should be."

With those comments made, and assurances that both a new board and new fire chief would be on the job by Jan. 31, Haber relented and said: "I'm not going to be the one to louse things up."

The vote to resign was unanimous.

High-point champ

Tips from your friendly neighborhood postmaster

Carmel Postmaster Jack Holt has half a dozen "dos and don'ts" for customers who want to be sure their holiday parcels get delivered.

• Don't box yourself in — use the right container. Boxes must be adequate in size for the items being mailed and provide enough space for cushioning material. They must also be strong enough to hold the weight of their contents. If the box has adequate space for an address (cross out confusing information), it is not necessary to wrap it in paper. If you use paper, however, be sure it is equivalent to the kind used in grocery bags (60-pound weight). Fiberboard tubes and similar long packages are acceptable if their length does not exceed 10 times their girth.

• Give yourself some cushion. Cushioning absorbs and distributes shock and vibration. Examples of good cushioning materials are foamed plastics, corrugated cardboard and loose fill material such as polystyrene, popcorn or shredded newspaper. Loose fill material should completely cover the items being mailed.

• Close parcels up right. Use tape, not string or rope, to close packages. Cellophane and masking tape should not be used. Pressure sensitive, filament-reinforced tape is recommended and should be wrapped around the parcel at least twice.

• Addresses are important. You can spend a fortune on wrapping, but your package will never reach its destination if it is not addressed right. Print or type the address clearly on one side of the parcel only. It is also a good idea to put the name and address inside the package in case the address label comes off.

• Don't mail your pet elephant. Packages must not exceed 70 pounds. They must also be at least 3½ inches wide and 5 inches long, and total length and girth cannot exceed 108 inches.

• Don't overinsure. If your parcel is valuable, you might want to insure it, but insure it only for its actual value. The Postal Service pays claims based on the actual value of lost or damaged items and not a higher amount.

Mr. Clean

QUICKLY GARNERING a reputation as a kind of mini-Mr. Clean is 8-year-old Luke Itano of Carmel, who, taking a sharp stick and a trash bag, has gone out for two-hour neighborhood cleaning missions on a couple of occasions. Itano, who attends River School, said he came up with the idea "all of a sudden," grabbed a stick and bag and was off policing the neighborhood around his home on Santa Rita near Mountain View. When asked why he decided to take on this one-boy cleaning campaign, he replied, "because it would help my city."

CHURCHES

Rev. Campbell sermon

Sunday, Nov. 17, at Carmel Presbyterian Church the new interim pastor, Rev. G. Raymond Campbell, will preach on the subject "When God Stirs the Soul."

The Campbells have just arrived from Oklahoma City where he organized the Westminster Presbyterian Church and served as its pastor for 31 years. He will serve the Carmel church until the congregation calls a pastor.

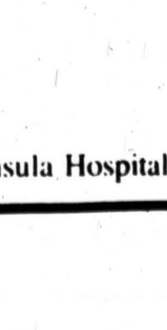
In retirement, Campbell has served as interim pastor for several large churches in southern California and in the Midwest. He has been moderator of his presbytery and synod; has represented the Presbyterian Church in southern India as the speaker for a Syrian Church convention; has been active in the affairs of the community of Oklahoma City; and was instrumental in the founding of the Presbyterian Hospital.

Special Thanksgiving service

A special Thanksgiving Day service is planned for the community. Neighbors and friends and anyone wishing to join with members of First Church of Christ, Scientist in giving thanks to God on Thursday, Nov. 28 are invited to attend.

During the same week, the local church joins other denominations in marking this year's National Bible Week theme: "Bring your mind as well as your heart to the Bible." Special displays will appear in the Reading Room window at Lincoln between 5th and 6th in Carmel. And an entire issue of the denomination's Christian Science Sentinel — available at the Reading Room — focuses on the enduring vitality of Scripture.

Scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. the hour-long Thanksgiving service will be held in the church edifice, Monte Verde and Fifth. Care for infants and toddlers will be provided by local church members. Sunday School-age children are invited to attend the service.



The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

If you're more than 43 years of age, then you must have celebrated some "unofficial" Thanksgivings. It wasn't until 1941 that Congress officially declared the fourth Thursday in November to be it. But the lawmakers were merely formalizing a cherished tradition which had been practiced in America since colonial times: President Lincoln first proclaimed a national observance in 1863.

There's not much argument in our exercise-conscious society that physical activity is good for people of all ages. But just how beneficial is it? According to the President's Council on Physical Fitness, regular exercise can increase life expectancy for men by 11 years and add as much as seven years to women's lives.

while in Bali he sold pieces to the Belgium and Brussels museums.

ALL DONE

The Carmel Business License and Code Review Board will miss some familar faces in its next meeting in December. The city council approved changes City Administrator Doug Schmitz proposed for the board, removing city staff as voting board members.

Schmitz proposed three major changes in the ordinance.

The first was to remove those items from the ordinance that are primarily taken care of by other boards such as business signs, which the planning commission deals with; that city staff be taken off the board; and that the applicant can prove he or she has a valid lease agreement.

The new board will consist of three members of the public nominated by the mayor, one planning commissioner and one representative of the Carmel Business Association. The nominations need city council approval. All of the members of the licensing board will be voting members.

The city council is tentatively scheduled to vote on the appointments Nov. 26. The only nomination that had been made public by press time was Rosemary Blackstone, part-owner of Rosemary and George (children's clothing store) on Lincoln Street, for the Carmel Business Association.

The licensing board, before the change, consisted of the city administrator, the city planning director, the city building offical, a representative of the planning commission, representatives of the police and fire departments, an appointed member of the public and two non-voting members — the city attorney and a representative of the Carmel Business Association.

Schmitz said he proposed the changes in the licensing board because "staff is supposed to be apolitical and the licensing board was evolving more and more towards a more political body. It has the discretionary and final approval for business applications and permits."

The change offers more opportunity for more residents to participate, he added, and he found "no resistance to the lease provision."

The licensing board was conceived originally as an "opportunity for people to come in and talk to staff," Schmitz said. "Since the general plan, with its greater emphasis on scrutiny, it has evolved into something more."

It had also been established, he said, to give the city greater control over the type of businesses allowed in Carmel.

ADAMS GET LICENSE

The Loren D. Adams Gallery on San Carlos Street near Sixth Avenue finally received its business license. The application had shown up on the licensing board list of applicants six times while decisions were being made on the use permit.

Loren and Patricia Adams purchased Connoiseur Gallery I way back in August but they had to decide whether they would be a single working artist gallery and get a use permit, or to be a brokers' gallery where artworks from several different artists are displayed and sold and remain a non-conforming use. They decided to stay a non-conforming use.

Loren Adams' works have been exhibited in galleries around Carmel for many years, Patricia Adams said. Patricia functions as business manager for her artist-husband, Loren Adams.

WISHART'S ALMOST TABLED

The licensing board and Richard Pepe, the soon-to-be new owner of Wishart's Bakery, had a good time discussing interior decorating during the meeting. Pepe was there to get a change of ownership on the business license from Frank Garnero.

Pepe decided that he did not want the use permit given to him by the board of adjustments last month because the permit wouldn't allow him to sell beverages — coffee, juice and milk, to be specific. That makes the longtime Ocean Avenue bakery a non-conforming use and a non-conforming use is restricted from expanding the uses on the property.

Board member Dorris Hammond challenged Pepe's removal of a showcase and the addition of a small table and two chairs. (All, of course, right next to the offending coffee machine.)

The addition of the tables changed the business, said Diane White, planning director, because people would sit down for coffee and eat something from the bakery. Other changes, such as a new refridgerator showcase, would be within the confines of the business, she felt, but the table and chairs were not.

Pepe told the board that the table and chairs were for people to sit and look through books of wedding and special occasion cakes and bakery items or for people waiting for something to come out of the oven.

Move them to the back of bakery, White suggested, but Pepe countered by saying that if he couldn't make some of the changes he wanted, he may not want to buy the place after all. The rent, Pepe told the board, is $4,000 a month (and that's a lot of cheese Danish.)

The licensing board granted the business license contingent on the removal of the table and two chairs.

Escrow was scheduled to close on Nov. 19, so we shall see what happens.

ARE YOU HELPING?

The holidays are a time when people really pitch in and help out local charitable organizations. It's also a time when many local businesses become a major source of revenue for these causes; that fact often goes unrecognized. MOVIES START GRINDING ON POINT LOBOS SUNDAY

Eric Von Stroheim has paid Carmel a $100,000 compliment in the selection of Point Lobos for the erection of his make-believe Monte Carlo.

This great motion picture enterprise will have its culmination on Sunday when a few hundred members of San Francisco society will gown themselves and wager a couple tons of stage money in the beaver board replica of the salles de jeu at the Point Lobos Monte Carlo.

The tentacles of the great movie industry have been gradually spreading northward and have touched many times lightly on our shores, but the film which is to be turned on Sunday will register the first recognition in a big financial way of the unequalled scenic phenomena of the Carmel Coast.

WIDE OPEN

To discourage the traditional practice of using "the grand canyon" on Junipero street as a dump, the street is being graded and leveled by a crew working under the street department. Six or seven days' work were to be put in and the job was to be completed by the end of this week.

In the vicinity of Fourth street, Junipero descends into a gulley and rises no more. The current project will effect the opening of the street through to Third. Projected is the opening of the street clear to Camino Del Monte. This could be done as a sort of spare time project of the street department, according to Street Commissioner J.A. Burge, at comparatively small cost. It could be done more quickly however, he said, as a WPA project. A considerable hump would have to be leveled north of Third street.

VALLEY GATEWAY SHOPPING CENTER CONSTRUCTION STARTED THIS WEEK

Construction started Monday on Carmel Rancho Shopping Center at the mouth of Carmel Valley. The first unit, to be completed by May 1, will include a Safeway supermarket, also a pharmacy and hardware store in addition to a six-pump Union Oil Company service station.

Entrance to the shopping center will be off the Valley road through a Carmel stone gateway on to Carmel Rancho Boulevard. This street extends through the development towards the river boundary of the property.

The entire development will be fenced along the Carmel Valley Road frontage. There will be a 15-foot landscaped strip between the roadway and the fencing. The off-street parking facilities, around the shopping areas on the west, south and east, will be screened from view of nearby residents by perimeter planting.

175 RESIDENTS VOICE CONCERN ON CARMEL VALLEY RANCH

About 175 vocal residents met Monday evening with county representatives and leaders of the Unique Golf Concepts company to discuss the Carmel Valley Ranch specific plan, which is scheduled to be heard by the planning commission at 1:30 p.m. on Dec. 17. The meeting had originally been set for the day before Thanksgiving, but several commissioners felt the issue of such importance vital public input might be missed on that day.

Several members of the audience put forward the possibility of amending the Del Monte Master Plan for the ranch, which was incorporated into the area general plan in 1966. Study of amendment must be authorized by the board of supervisors either on its own initiative or in response to a proper petition from their constituents.

The current Upper Carmel Valley-Cachagua mini-master plan study group was authorized under board initiative, but the lower Carmel Valley proposed amendments to the master plan was undertaken at the request of private citizens.

PT. LOBOS, shown here in a recent photo, has not only attracted numerous visitors but moviemakers as well, including Erich Von Stroheim in the 1920s. Stroheim put more than $100,000 into Carmel's coffers with his movie about Monte Carlo, filmed almost entirely in the park.

TOLL PROPOSED ON HIGHWAY 1

Controlled access and a toll were proposed for Highway 1 through Big Sur last week by the Monterey County Planning Commission.

The commissioners, meeting in special session to discuss the proposed Local Coastal Program for Big Sur, voted 5-3 to support establishment of restrictions on traffic through the heavily used tourist area.

A majority of the commissioners agreed that traffic congestion through Big Sur is already serious enough to warrant regulation.

A toll was recommended for non-residents of the county to relieve some of the congestion and to provide revenue for paving turnouts to further ease the traffic flows.

The restrictions on traffic, which would require state laws to implement, would also include limits on the movement of recreational vehicles during peak months.

Guthrie Theater will stage Charles Dickens' 'Great Expectations'

AS RIDDLED with plot twists as a nighttime soap opera, Charles Dickens's Great Expectations will be staged Saturday, Nov. 23 at Sunset Theater in Carmel.

PIP, THE orphan boy whose quest to become a gentleman takes him on many adventures, is challenged to a fistfight by a pale young gentleman. The Guthrie Theater brings the stage version of Pip's odyssey to Carmel when Great Expectations is performed at Sunset Theater on Saturday, Nov. 23. Timothy Wahrer is Pip (left) and Mark Benninghofen is Herbert Pocket.

This is the touring production of the Guthrie Theater of Minneapolis. It is adapted from Dickens's novel by playwright Barbara Field, and directed by Guthrie Associate Director Stephen Kanee, the team that created the Guthrie's acclaimed A Christmas Carol a decade ago.

Great Expectations also reunites the original design team from A Christmas Carol — composer Hiram Titus, scenic designer Jack Barkla and costume designer Jack Edwards.

Dickens's story focuses on the orphaned Pip, who encounters such human curiosities as the rich, embittered Miss Havisham; a brutal prison escapee; and the kindly Joe Gargery.

Field credits David Edgar's highly touted adaptation of Nicholas Nickleby as a major influence on her script.

"In Great Expectations I quite openly and admiringly use Edgar's narrative techniques, but they are very different works," Field observed. "Great Expectations is a much darker piece, much more complex, because there's a lot more going on psychologically in the characters."

Charles Dickens fancied himself an actor and most of his lectures consisted of readings from his novels. His dramatic sense is evident in lively dialogue and intensely dramatic emotional scenes. Like many other Dickens novels, Great Expectations was first published in installment form in daily newspapers.

THE ECCENTRIC Miss Havisham looks on as Pip is taunted by the beautiful Estella in Charles Dickens's Great Expectations. The Guthrie Theater brings this production to Carmel on Saturday, Nov. 23. The cast of 11 plays more than 30 Dickensian characters. Included are, from left, Ann-Sara Matthews as Estella, Darrie Lawrence as Miss Havisham and Timothy Wahrer as Pip.

Ghity Corbat will solo

Piano recital benefits wildlife sanctuary

A CONCERT with a cause will be presented at the Monterey Conference Center, when Ghity Corbat of Carmel Valley appears in benefit recital for the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 22 at Steinbeck Forum. A wine and cheese reception with the artist will follow the recital.

A native of Tehran, Iran, Corbat gave her first piano recital at age 5. She studied at the St. Cecilia Conservatory of Rome under Maestro Renzo Silvestri and completed her graduate work at the Juilliard School of Music in New York, under the tutelage of Sascha Gorodnitcki. In addition to the United States, Corbat has performed in Italy, Austria and Iran.

She is presently coached by Michael Rosenker, former concert master of the New York Philharmonic.

Friday's two-part concert will include Chromatic Fantasia by J.S. Bach; Sonata Op. 53 (Waldstein), Allego Con Brio, Adagio Molto and Rondo, Allegretto Moderato by Beethoven; Allegro De Concierto by E. Granados; Rhapsodie in E Minor No. 5 and St. Francis of Paul Walking on the Waves by Liszt.

The Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary is a non-profit research center for endangered species recovery and wildlife rehabilitation. Located in the Ventana Wilderness Area of Los Padres National Forest, the 240-acre "forest laboratory" is devoted to perpetuation of native animal species.

Tax-deductible concert admission is $10 general, $25 for patron admission which includes a wine and cheese reception with Ghity Corbat following the concert.

Tickets will be available at the door. Monterey Conference Center is at 1 Portola Plaza in downtown Monterey. For additional information, call 659-3231.

GHITY CORBAT of Carmel Valley will perform a diverse program of works for piano for the benefit of the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary. The concert will take place at 8 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 22 in Steinbeck Forum at the Monterey Conference Center. For details, call 659-3231.

Harpists make music during free concerts

HARP RECITALS presented by young professionals, students of the Susann McDonald Harp Master Class at Hidden Valley Music Seminars, will be offered on three successive evenings.

This series marks McDonald's sixth annual harp master class housed at the Carmel Valley arts institution. She also plans a class recital on Saturday, Nov. 30.

Dominique Piana of Claremont joins with flutist Nika Rejto of Los Angeles for a harp-flute recital at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 27, in the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula on Carmel Valley Road. Piana teaches harp at the La Sierra campus of Loma Linda University. She studied with McDonald at California State University, Los Angeles and also has degrees from the Royal Conservatory of Music in Brussels and the Claremont Graduate School.

Rejto studied flute with Louise Di Tullio and continued her education at Berklee College of Music in Boston and the Dick Grove Music School in Los Angeles. She divides her time between teaching and performing both classical and jazz music.

Inga-Lisa Jansen of Switzerland and Sarah Voynow of New York City will each give recitals at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 28, in Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley Road at Ford Road in Carmel Valley. Jansen, who studied with McDonald at the Juilliard School, is now beginning a concert and teaching career in her own country. Voynow, a graduate student of McDonald's at Juilliard, performs with the Lincoln Center Student Program in the New York City schools.

A program at 8 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 29 at the Carmel Mission Basilica features separate recitals by Maria Casales of North Hollywood and Patti Masri-Fletcher of Orinda. Last summer, Casale was one of three finalists (and the only American finalist) in the Ninth Israel Harp Contest, the world's most prestigious harp competition. Masri-Fletcher played in the Spoleto Festival Orchestra in Italy and Charleston. She is currently a member of the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra. Both were McDonald's students at Juilliard.

HARPIST Dominique Piana joins flutist Nika Rejto for a harp-flute recital on Wednesday, Nov. 27 at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula. Sponsored by Hidden Valley Music Seminars, the concert is free.

The McDonald Master Class concludes with a recital of all the participants at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 30 in Hidden Valley Theatre. As is the tradition, the final portion of the concert features a Christmas Carol medley by eight or more harpists, including Susann McDonald.

Admission to the first three evening concerts is free. Saturday night admission is $8. Tickets may be obtained from the Hidden Valley Box Office, 659-3115, and the following ticket outlets: How to Do Anything Bookstore in Lobos Court and Countrywide Crafts in The Barnyard, Carmel; Abinante Music Store, 425 Alvarado St., Monterey; Prim and Proper, 533 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove and Jim Gattis Menswear, 315 S. Main St., Salinas.

VERSED IN both classical and jazz music, flutist Nika Rejto will perform in recital with harpist Dominique Piana at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula. For details about the Hidden Valley Music Seminars Harp Master Class, call 659-3115.

MUSIC CORNER
BY JO ANN LA TORRA

Varied strengths revealed during trio of concerts

OLEG KOVALENKO chose an excellent program for the second series of concerts of the new/old Monterey Bay Symphony: Mozart, Kodaly, Brahms.

This was my first symphony concert at Sunset Theater, and it was an unpleasant surprise. The hall is more suited for solo recitals and chamber music than its detractors care to admit. The acoustics are quirky, but I've heard a lot worse. Personally, I enjoy the rather funky atmosphere.

Seating is obviously a problem, even with the stage extension. I half expected to hear little squeals of pain as the elbow of a bow arm caught its stand mate in the side, or a trombone slide encountered a back. Sound, however, is the ultimate test, and this hall is not kind to an orchestra, to put it mildly. It is such that I don't feel comments on balance to be worthwhile.

Mozart's lovely "Haffner" Symphony, No. 35, opened. Tempos were on the slow side (out of deference to the acoustics?) and, in general, Kovalenko's reading was limpid. Certainly there is nothing wrong with emphasizing the lyrical aspects of a supreme composer of opera. My preference is toward more crispness and precision, proving there are many ways of viewing Mozart.

One had the feeling that Kodaly's "Peacock Variations" took up an inordinate amount of rehearsal time. This thoroughly delightful set of variations on Hungarian folk songs was somewhat labored in its presentation, and took on more seriousness than I believe Kodaly intended. Rhythms should have been more incisive — they were sometimes hard to follow. Beat patterns in Hungarian folk music are often irregular; in a symphonic piece, this irregularity can turn to instability very easily.

Violinist Dylana Jenson joined the orchestra after intermission in one of the greatest of all concertos, violin or otherwise, the Brahms. She played well enough, but the collaboration just didn't quite make it. The soloist was prominent throughout, even in passages where Brahms clearly considered it part of the orchestral fabric. Somehow, somewhere, Kovalenko and Jenson had not reached a mutual accord on the work.

The new name, alas, has not eradicated the problems that plagued the orchestra last year: poor intonation, sloppy attacks, flaccid passagework. These fundamental orchestral problems really must be addressed.

Nevertheless, they were rewarded with a partial-standing ovation. It is a pity that American audiences are so quick to jump to their feet or to stomp them, for when something truly fine comes along, there is no further reward. Since performers are usually painfully aware of how they played, they are not inclined to be flattered by what they know to be an undeserved response.

LESLIE RICHARDS, mezzo-soprano, pinch-hit for an ailing Stephanie Friedman on the concert series at Pacific Grove Middle School on Thursday, Nov. 14. The program, therefore, was something of a potpourri, but it contained some choice morsels.

Haydn's marvelous cantata, Arianna a Naxos, opened the program. This little-known work, written for voice and piano (i.e., not a transcription), shows a side of Haydn not known to most listeners because we don't get to hear his operas. It is dramatic, alternately fiery and pathetic, in its re-telling of the familiar story of Ariadne's cruel abandonment by Theseus. Richards needn't have been so restrained — she proved her dramatic abilities later. Much more improvisation would have been in order, in both parts, and the piano could have exaggerated the 18th century mannerisms. Haydn is not always cool and detached! It seemed that Richards held back because she felt she should, not because she wanted to.

The Songs of a Wayfarer by Mahler followed, and here the piano is a reduction of an orchestral score. The pieces are not so effective this way, relying as they do on orchestral color, but they were reasonably well done.

For her second half, Richards chose mostly operatic arias (she is currently with the San Francisco Opera), by Donizetti, Verdi, Massanet, Bizet and others. It's obvious this is where her energies are directed at this time, as she presented them with ease and dramatic flair.

Richards is just at the beginning of her career, so she still has much to learn, but experience is the crucial element. The voice is somewhat uneven, with the lower register not as secure as one would like. The sound gets prettier as it goes up, and one hopes she will re-examine her voice for dramatic possibilities in the upper register.

Susanna Lemberskaya provided highly competent assistance at the piano in a lot of very unpianistic scores.

THE OLD/NEW symphony opened its second series of concerts Sunday, Nov. 17 at King Hall in Monterey.

Clark Suttle chose to open with the "Jubilation" Overture by the contemporary American composer, Robert Ward. It was a pleasant curtain-raiser, nothing more. Ward's musical language, at least at that time (1946) was thoroughly tonal and post-romantic, with a few jazzy rhythms to make it sound American.

Juliana Markova was the featured piano soloist, in the First Concerto of Tchaikovsky. The reasons for the popularity of this concerto escape me. There are some pretty tunes in it, but one has to wait through so much filler in between. And it is a very long piece. Markova certainly played it well, with control, wit, and an impressive range of sound. Suttle accompanied with sensitivity.

The Seventh Beethoven Symphony occupied the second half of the program. This is a fascinating work and reams have been written about it. Louis Cuyler's excellent program notes sum it up concisely for those who want more musicological information.

Suttle chose to make the second movement the climax of the work, a not unreasonable interpretation. However, the first movement suffered, perhaps because of this. It could have used more tension, more suspense. It was too much an introduction to the drama of the second movement.

The third and fourth movements were spritely and carefully molded. All in all, it was a respectable performance, and we can expect Suttle's interpretation of this symphony to grow and ripen over the years.

ROUNDUP

Autograph party set at Thunderbird

Local author Ron Mackie will autograph his most recent work, A Wild Garden — The Monterey Peninsula, at the Thunderbird Bookshop.

His 24 illustrated stories impart bits of plant and animal lore and provide new insights into the wild inhabitants of the peninsula's parks, fields, woods and shores.

Mackie will be at the Thunderbird Bookshop from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 23. The Thunderbird is in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel. For details, call 624-1803.

Party fetes Ansel Adams book

Bookworks in Pacific Grove will be the setting for a party that will celebrate Ansel Adams: An Autobiography.

Guests will include co-author Mary Alinder, the photographer's chief assistant and collaborator on his autobiography, and her husband, photographer James Alinder.

Classical music and refreshments will highlight the party, which is open to the public. The gathering will take place from 3 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 24.

Bookworks is at 667 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove. For details, call 372-2242.

HAYDN'S Lord Nelson Mass and J.S. Bach's Cantata 150 will be sung by I Cantori Di Carmel at the Carmel Mission Basilica. The concerts will begin at 8 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 23-24. For ticket information, call 372-4715 or 625-0944.

SAL FERRANTELLI serves as conductor and musical director of I Cantori Di Carmel. The chorus, more than 60 strong, is composed of Monterey Peninsula residents. I Cantori will appear Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 23-24 at Carmel Mission Basilica. (Photograph by Dave Stock).

I Cantori Di Carmel sings works of Haydn, J.S. Bach

THE CARMEL Mission Basilica will be filled with the strains of classical and baroque chorale music when I Cantori Di Carmel appears on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 23-24.

Sal Ferrantelli directs the chorus, which will perform Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass and J.S. Bach's Cantata 150, "Nach dir, Herr." Full orchestra will accompany the Haydn piece, while the Bach will feature a small chamber group.

Soloists joining I Cantori for this performance include Caterina Micieli and Shirley Hubbard, sopranos; Linda Purdy, alto; Gene Albin, tenor; and Reg Huston, bass.

I Cantori Di Carmel was formed in 1982 with a charter group of 27 vocalists. It is now 60 strong and presents four concerts a year with full orchestra. Its members come from various Monterey Peninsula communities and include a nurse, teacher, contractor, personnel director, artist, dentist, landscaper, homemaker, school principal and minister.

Concert admission is $9. Tickets can be purchased in advance at Do Re Mi in The Barnyard, Carmel; Bookworks in Pacific Grove and The Book Tree in Monterey. For additional information about the concerts or about this non-profit organization, call 372-4715 or 625-0944.

Alaska's inside passage explored

DON COOPER will narrate in person his newest film, Alaska's Inside Passage, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 21-22 at Sunset Theater in Carmel.

PHOTOGRAPHER and humorist Don Cooper will appear in person to narrate his newest film Alaska's Inside Passage as part of the Explorama series.

The film will be screened at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21 and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 22 in Carmel's Sunset Theater.

During the production of the film, Cooper and his brother Dennis sailed up the famed Inside Passage to Alaska, and shot footage in Ketchikan, Wrangell, Petersburg, Glacier Bay, Seward, Anchorage and the remote Aleutian Islands. He also photographed the Bella Coola Indians. Alaska's Inside Passage includes wildlife scenes of caribou, moose, grizzly and Kodiak bears.

Cooper, whose previous films have been shown on television, has also worked for the National Geographic Society. He is a native of Montana, but spent many years working as an Alaskan lumberjack.

Reserved seat tickets at $6.75 are on sale at all BASS outlets, in Carmel at the Mail Box, Eighth and San Carlos, 625-5210; and by calling Explorama at (415) 771-4733, or toll free (800) 441-4733.

THEATER REVIEW

BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

A musical fantasy that isn't

ONSTAGE AT Monterey's Wharf Theater is a holiday revival of the Wharf's own Cinderella, "a musical fantasy" directed by Barney Hulse. Although a fairy tale set to music is a likely holiday crowd-pleaser, this one's a disappointment on so many levels that it suggests a giant step backward from the Wharf's recent string of musicals.

The uncredited script takes a fractured fairy tale approach to the classic tale of the lovely maiden beset by an ugly stepmother and her equally repulsive daughters. It's a funny concept, but the logic seems to be to push every story element to its clumsiest extreme and pepper the production liberally with modern references. Pushing one element (the Godmother, for example, kvetches about every magical chore) is funny, Pushing them all is unimaginative and tiresome.

The single set, also uncredited, is not much to look at. White strips of material hang from the fly for no apparent purpose and the prince's chamber (which is also Cinderella's stepmother's house) features an undersize bed. (The prince is still a kid, get it?) Costuming is a little more ambitious, with Cinderella stunning in a turquoise gown and the prince and his squire looking fairy-talish enough in ornate medieval clothes. But by and large, the show fails on the level of spectacle.

CINDERELLA (Karen Ankenman, left), receives party gown assistance from her Godmother (Jennifer McGinnis) in the Wharf Theater production of Cinderella.

Which brings us to the story and the music. A great deal of the music is borrowed from oldies in the public domain. Thus we get snatches of famous torch songs ("They're Singing Songs of Love, But Not For Me") mixed in with original tunes, not one of which is memorable. As for the story, the prince (Norman L. Stottmeister) is a likeable joker with a yen for show business, and Cinderella (Karen Ankenman) is a fetching lass with greasepaint in her blood. The prince is abetted by a courtier (Vince Salazar) who makes the most of some of the show's funnier lines and who gets a lot of mileage out of a frog suit.

The wicked stepmother is gleefully played by Howard Hinckley most convincingly gotten up in drag, and the uncharitable stepsisters are played by Kristin Ingram and Joan McIninch, neither of whom are either ugly enough or wicked enough to sustain interest. Jennifer McGinnis' reluctant Godmother too often rushes her lines and mistimes her gestures, and the children's chorus (Robert McGinnis and Luke Ingram) is not given much to do.

Stottmeister and Ankenman bring considerable talent to their roles; Stottmeister's comic timing is intact, and Ankenman sings well and looks pretty in the ingenue role. But loose direction and clumsy staging combine with a pedestrian script to outwit their talents and Ankenman has a line that sums things up. Trying to drum up a ball gown, she calls several other fairy tale characters and confides to one of them, "I'm trapped in a lousy fairy tale, and I can't get out."

THEATER REVIEW
BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

Expert performances distinguish 'Hothouse'

SCRATCH THE surface of almost any Harold Pinter play and you will uncover these fundamental elements: an ineffective power figure made helpless by his delusions of effectiveness; a cold-blooded second-in-command who manipulates the power figure and is the real dominant force; an amoral female who attempts to manipulate both the foregoing; a sleazy red herring who ups the action level but whose actions ultimately have no effect, and a hapless, sane person victimized by his assumption that those just mentioned are normal people in a normal world.

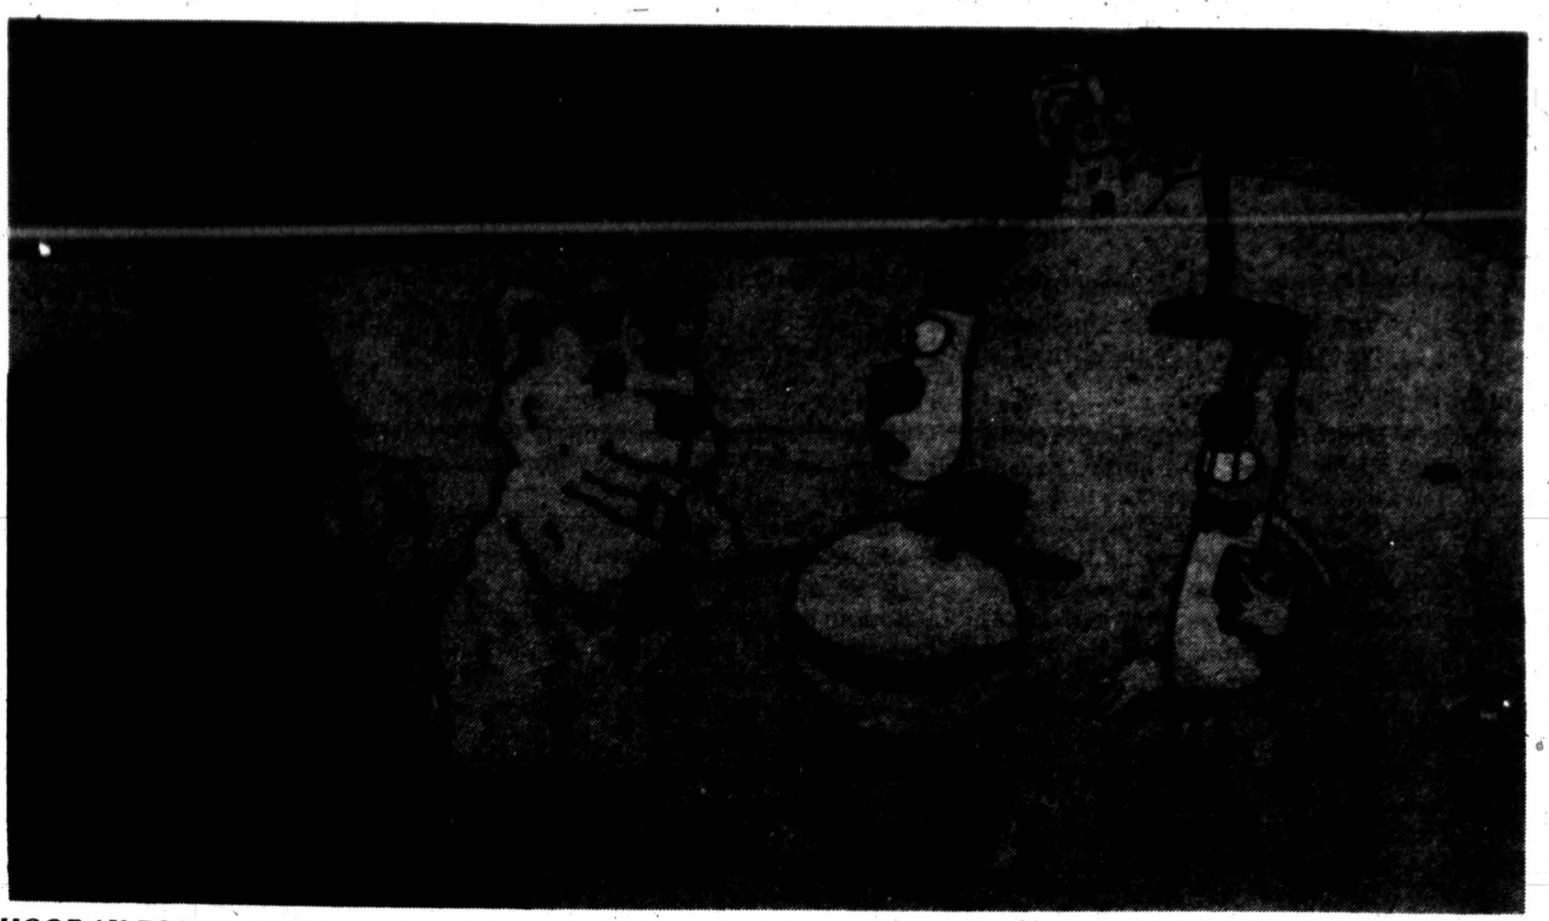
But Harold Pinter is one of Britain's most maddeningly enigmatic playwrights, and rarely are the fundamental elements easy to identify. The Hothouse, an early Pinter drama currently onstage at Monterey Peninsula College's SRO Theatre, is therefore a rare chance to see the stuff of which Pinter plays are made. Indeed, The Hothouse will be most enjoyed by those who have seen Pinter's other works. On its own merits, The Hothouse is a loosely constructed, sometimes unconvincing melodrama involving characters none of us is likely to care very much about.

The current production, directed with good pacing and some care by Peter Navarrette, benefits from expert performances by Andy Philpot as Roote, the resolutely befuddled convalescent home administrator; Patrick McEvoy, as the tight-lipped, controlled second-in-command; and Lillian Dean as Miss Cutts. Dean applies just the right intensity to Pinter's mangled logic, and Philpot and McEvoy succeed in sustaining tension through some badly overwritten scenes.

In smaller but important roles, Jonathan Seydel is the soul of youthful innocence and earnestness, and Tony Mariano slides through the twisted role of Lush with swinish ease.

Patrick McEvoy's multiple purpose setting is realistic right down to the institution-green of the office walls and the menacing tangle of wires in the interrogation room, and Jonathan Seydel manages some tricky lighting tolerably well.

In the world of Harold Pinter, nightmare is made palpable in everyday terms that enhance its power. Pinter's characters speak the language of the subconscious. Who, for example, does not harbor the secret fear that the convalescent home in which they have placed a beloved relative is not run by a madman or a megalomaniac incapable of compassion? At bottom, Pinter trades in the power of the overwhelming fear dependency always engenders; although the issue is never so much as mentioned, the chord it strikes is the source of Pinter's power as a playwright.



HOORAY FOR Shadowboxland, a recent animated short by Marv Newland, is one of 16 films that make up the new Festival of Animation. The festival will be presented Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 23-24 in the Monterey Peninsula College Music Building.

International animation screened

TAKING cartoon-craft beyond the Saturday morning level, the Festival of Animation will be screened Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 23-24 at Monterey Peninsula College.

The festival will feature 16 animated shorts of international origins. Representing Canada is this year's Academy Award-winner, Charade and the critically acclaimed Big Snit.

More than the traditional ink and celluloid animation techniques are employed in the festival films. Criminal Tango, a French production by Solweig Von Kleinst, makes use of the rarely seen scratch-on-film technique. Will Vinton's Vantz Kant Danz is an example of claymation, and computer animation is showcased in a Robert Abel work from the Lucasfilm LTD./Pixar Computer Animation Group.

Latter-day cartoon favorites Beanie and Cecil star in D.J. The D.J. while a sunglass-sporting teddy bear drives away with Hooray for Sandboxland. Other animated shorts arrive from England and Japan.

Show time is at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday and at 2, 4, 7 and 9:30 p.m. on Sunday in the Monterey Peninsula College Music Building. Tickets are $4.50 in advance, $5 at the box office. Sunday matinee tickets for children age 12 and younger are $3 and will be available only at the door.

Adult tickets can be purchased in advance at Do Re Mi Records in the Barnyard, 625-1229; and at Do Re Mi in Carmel Plaza, Carmel, 625-5238.

The box office will be open one hour prior to each performance. A 25 cent parking fee is enforced at MPC daily.

MPC jazz band will perform

The Monterey Peninsula College All Stars Big Band, under the direction of Don Schamber, will perform traditional and contemporary jazz favorites at The Oakwoods Restaurant at the fairgrounds from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 24.

Big Band jazz members range from current MPC music students to retired music professionals from around the peninsula. The group has been playing in area restaurants and clubs for a number of years, with the performers and host establishments contributing the necessary time, talent, equipment and facilities to carry on the tradition.

Mirecourt Piano Trio will perform at Sunset

THE CHAMBER Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula will present the Mirecourt Piano Trio at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 26 at Sunset Theater, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

The trio features Kenneth Goldsmith, violin; Terry King, cello; and John Jensen, piano. They will play Mozart's Trio in E major, K. 542, Brahms's Trio in C major, Op. 87 and Ravel's Trio in A minor.

The Mirecourt Piano Trio was founded in 1973 by its present members after individual work with Nathan Milstein, William Kroll, Gwendolyn Koldofsky and Gregor Piatigorsky when they were teaching at California State University at Fullerton. The name Mirecourt is taken from the French center of violin-making since 1601.

The ensemble became artists-in-resident at Grinnell College in 1975, succeeding the Lenox and Manhattan quartets. Since 1981, the ensemble has held 10-day residencies at Purdue University. It has commissioned more than 25 works by emerging American composers and received a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. Cellist Gregor Piatigorsky has called the ensemble "second to none in the world."

The trio has performed throughout the United States, toured Europe in 1976 and 1978, and in 1983 as the first visiting piano trio to perform and teach in the People's Republic of China under the U.S.-China Cultural Arts Exchange program. The trio also performs on Iowa Public Television, St. Paul Sunday Morning, and other programs, being "particularly adept at making serious music accessible to those who have never experienced it." The Mirecourt Trio has recorded under the TR, CRI, Grand Prix and Genesis labels.

Violinist Kenneth Goldsmith started his musical training as a child and is a graduate of Stanford University and George Peabody College for Teachers. He has been an orchestral violinist and concert master and has played with the Casals Festival Orchestra as well as the Detroit, Nashville and American symphonies. As a member of the Mirecourt Trio, the Fromm Foundation Quartet, the Group for Contemporary Music at Columbia University and other ensembles, Goldsmith has premiered many works by American composers.

Cellist Terry King was a pupil of Gregor Piatigorsky and is a graduate of Mount Saint Mary's College and the Claremont Graduate School in southern California. King has performed as a soloist with the Wisconsin Chamber Orchestra, the Vienna Chamber Orchestra, the Palisades Symphony and the Pierce College Orchestra.

He made his New York recital debut in 1975 and has played in many recitals across the United States. King has also conducted the Mozarteum Orchestra in Salzburg, Utah Symphony's Nova Chamber Ensemble and other groups. He has commissioned and premiered many contemporary works, and currently is finishing a discography of the recordings of Gregor Piatigorsky and is assembling an historical recorded anthology of his great master.

Pianist John Jensen, a graduate of Occidental College and the University of Southern California, started playing the piano as a child and was a student of Gwendolyn Koldofsky. Jensen's musical interests and keyboard skills range from classical music to jazz improvisations and ragtime. Jensen made his recital debut in New York's Merkin Recital Hall in 1980 and has performed as soloist and accompanist with many ensembles as well as appearing on radio and television in the Los Angeles area. He is also a composer and has contributed a number of medley arrangements for the Mirecourt Trio.

Memberships in the Chamber Music Society with season tickets are still available. Single tickets are $8 at the door before the concert. For information, call 372-5981.

THE MIRECOURT Piano Trio will perform a concert of works by Ravel, Brahms and Mozart on Tuesday, Nov. 26. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. For ticket information, call 372-5981.

Pro-Am golf tourney draws entries

Jack Lemmon and Clint Eastwood are among the early amateur entrants for the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

The tournament will be played the week of Jan. 27 to Feb. 2 over the Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill golf courses.

Season badges are now available at Monterey Peninsula golf shops, in addition to the tournament office.

The $50 badge (which will be $60 after Jan. 1) entitles the holder to the full week of golf: practice rounds Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Shoot-Out on Tuesday, Jan. 28, and tournament play Jan. 30 to Feb. 2.

Defending champion Mark O'Meara is expected to defend his title. He will head 180 touring professionals who will be teamed with 180 celebrity/business amateurs in the 72-hole championship. Prize money will be $640,000.

Other early amateur entrants are Peter Ueberroth, Hank "Dennis the Menace" Ketcham, Roger Penske, Don Strock, Charles "Peanuts" Schulz, Grits Greshman, Eddie DeBartolo, Jr., owner of the San Francisco 49ers and Giants owner Bob Lurie.

Also expected are James Garner, George C. Scott and three Gatlin brothers — Steve, Rudy and Larry.

For further information, call 649-1533.

'Great Expectations' to be staged

"It was like watching a mini-series on Masterpiece Theater," noted director Stephen Kanee. "Readers got caught up in the story and wouldn't miss a chapter. It's similar to the way people feel today about Dynasty or Dallas."

The Guthrie production is composed of a series of dramatic scenes linked by narration and music. The relatively abstract staging will supply a universal background. Like a collage, elements of each scene set are visible throughout the play, but highlighted as needed. In one scene, the stage becomes the River Thames and Pip, in a rowboat, collides with a great steamer.

"There are some very theatrical effects," Kanee said.

All seats are reserved for this production. Tickets are $10 and $12.50 and are available 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday at the Sunset Center director's office, Eighth Avenue and San Carlos Street in Carmel. For additional information, call 624-3996.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

BY JANE WILGRESS

Some thoughts on exhibits

FROM ITS inception, the Cherry Foundation has been a grassroots organization minimally concerned with prestige.

Attention to basics for artists and would-be artists — rent, instruction, materials, exhibit space — has characterized the help it has given, whether in former years when there was plenty of money to work with or today when there is little or none.

This consistent policy is rooted, I believe, in the knowledge (which the Cherrys certain had) that "the secret of art is that it is not a theory to be learned but a life to be lived." It may also be rooted in the concept of service and perhaps in the dictum that "ethics and aesthetics are one." (I don't know whether Jeanne had ever read Wittgenstein, but this is the kind of idea she relished.)

Today still free of prestige considerations, Cherry Foundation is equally free of commercial and academic criteria and is thus in the fortunate position of being able to accommodate exhibitors of widely differing circumstances and competencies — the student, the established artist, the credentialed and the free-wheeling who have perhaps never heard of credentials.

Because of this providential freedom in which we work, the evaluation of potential exhibitors is, in my estimation, best based first and foremost on recognizing that a show here involves an exchange of gifts between the foundation and the artist (in practical terms, the foundation gives the wall space and the artist gives work to hang). The nature of that possible future-oriented exchange and its pitfalls (i.e., is it wanted, is it needed, could it harm either party, will it burden either party unduly?) is the matter to be evaluated. Questions of excellence, taste, timing and consequence, while they are important, are incidental to the overriding alchemy of the human exchange.

These are some considerations that have been borne in upon me over the nearly 10 years in which I have worked at the Cherry Foundation.

Christmas in Carmel choristers sought

Historic icons of Greece and Russia displayed

MUSEUM QUALITY icons dated from the 14th to 19th centuries will be exhibited at the Zantman Art Galleries of Carmel.

An opening reception for these "windows to heaven" will take place 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23 at the Sixth Avenue and Mission Street Zantman location.

Assembled with the cooperation of the Ikonen Galerie Benedicte Oehry of Zurich, Switzerland, the icons represent the schools of imperial Russia and the Greek islands. The Royal Doors from the Nativity Church in Bethlehem will be exhibited. Also included in this show are rare Ethiopian processional and silver crosses.

The term "icon" derives from the Greek word "eikon," which means an image or likeness. It has come to mean a sacred image or an object of consecration, and centuries ago these paintings were executed only by monastic artists. Each is meant to represent a symbolic window between the earthly and heavenly realms.

The use of icons as an aid to worship by Orthodox Christians has survived for more than 1,500 years. Icons had been in use for at least four centuries in the Byzantine Greek world by the time they were introduced, along with the Orthodox Christian faith, into Russia by Prince Vladimir. Major centers of icon painting in Russia evolved in Kiev, Novgorod, Tver, Pskov and Moscow.

Elaborate rizas with gold, silver, pearls and and enamels were made to frame the icons, especially for aristrocratic patrons.

Icons typically depicted the Christian hierarchy, from Christ down to the local saints. The Zantman exhibit includes both Greek and Russian interpretations of St. George and the Dragon — one of the most popular saints in the Christian world although the Catholic Church demoted him as an official saint in 1970. Stories about his life were embroidereed from the sixth century on. Later, St. George became patron saint of Moscow and also of England. In Palestine he was venerated as a military saint.

All of the icons in the Zantman exhibition are authenticated. Five were displayed at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art in 1982 and at the Newport Harbor Art Museum Antiques Show at Newport Beach in 1984.

For additional information about this icon collection, call 624-8314. The gallery is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

HEROISM IS reflected in this Russian icon, St. George the Great Deliverer of the City. A collection of museum-quality icons from the 14th to the centuries will be exhibited at the Zantman Art Galleries of Carmel. An opening reception is planned 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23.

ART NOTES
BY SAM COLBURN

The foundations of art

ART, LIKE any human activity, needs a foundation. Artists do not, like Topsy, just grow. It is true that primitives create without training or reference to orthodox ways of seeing, but, for the most part, students and indeed professionals alike need a place to practice and learn.

Through the years the Carmel Unified School District has, through its Department of Adult Education, offered many classes in art including life study, drawing and painting the human figure. This is basic learning for the student, and offers the adult artist a source to which he or she can continually return.

This need has been fulfilled through the availability of that room known as 16 in the Sunset Cultural Center. Recently the City of Carmel needed that space for temporary offices while city hall was being renovated. The life study and other art classes were moved to the Carmelo School out on the Carmel Valley Road. This location is not good. It is too far out from town, there is no entrance lighting for night classes and that road is, perhaps, the most dangerous in the area with the possible exception of Highway 68. These drawbacks have resulted in loss of attendance.

These classes provide the opportunity for students and pros to work together. It would be a great loss to the community if Room 16 is not returned to use as locale for the Department of Adult Education art classes. This public service is about the only reason for calling Carmel an art colony in the sense of people drawing, painting and talking together.

THE GALLERIES of the Carmel Art Association are featuring two one-woman shows, the recent works of Mary FitzGerald Beach and of Wilda Norththrop. These two ladies do indeed have a very personal imagery. There is freshness in their vision.

"Recent Impressions of Ireland" by Mary FitzGerald Beach is a showing of monotypes. It is about sheep and cows, but let me say that these are Irish animals. They have poetry and grace and they are straight out of the land of the shamrock and leprechaun. They lie in green pastures. The herds of sheep in the Ruby Mountains near Elko, Nev., need a large grazing area to get enough to eat out of that high desert terrain.

Monotypes have a texture that is not attainable through brush and palette knife except through this kind of transference. This is very evident in Wanderers, a composition of white, yellow, green and brown. The texture is also interesting in Irish Grazers. The strange magic of Ireland comes through in this show.

Over in the Beardsley Room of the Carmel Art Association you will see a great outpouring of watercolors by Wilda Norththrop. There is much change in her work. She used to work from photographs, and, indeed, this is obvious in one of the current pieces. Maybe she has used this source for other paintings in the show. It does not matter. What you get is important, and, in some of these watercolors, she achieves a depth which I have not seen in the work of any painter using this medium. You look at San Francisco Market and first there is an abstract image, but in behind that are forms at different depths.

In some of her paintings Wilda uses many small areas of color. Now the trick in this is to keep the values in balance which in turn builds form. She does this very well. The title of her show is "Over Lace Underwear Around Town Through Water Watercolor." Both her work and that of Mary FitzGerald Beach can be seen through Dec. 4.

SIX MIXED WOOLIES,* a monotype by Mary FitzGerald Beach, can be viewed in the galleries of the Carmel Art Association through Dec. 4. The galleries are on Dolores Street near Fifth Avenue in Carmel.

THE PACIFIC Grove Art Center is doing well with all-volunteer help. At present in the entrance hall the Calendar Winners in Childrens' Art brighten the walls. They are so good — these kids — in their use of space and creation of shapes. They are young and innocent and untouched by those adult monsters, Aerial and Linear Perspective.

The center has a showing of acrylic paintings on canvas by Dick Crispo in its main gallery. The earthquake series is his reaction to that monumental disaster in Mexico City. I liked in particular Body Bags and Reservations Cancelled. These two have a more direct relation to that horrible whim of nature. Most of his other paintings are characteristic of his approach as a muralist. Dick uses organic form laced with geometric shapes.

This is, of course, the nature of the medium in which we live. His mastery of acrylic enables him to do this as he can be both loose and tight in the same painting. His color is modulated. He is not a shouter. The general tone of each work is either warm or cool.

Over in the Elmarie Dyke Gallery a young man by the name of Jeffrey Jelenfy shows monotypes which are all black and white. The graphic impact is strong and simple. Some of these prints are symbolic shapes. Others seem to be derived from happenings in nature. I would say hurricanes, an ominous oncoming storm, or cyclones.

It is very heartening to see that the Pacific Grove Art Center presents fine art despite the devastating storm which occurred within the membership. The vitality is there, and may I personally thank all those who have volunteered their time to make this possible.

Erte jewelry collection makes debut

ART TO wear will be featured at the Reid Gallery in the Barnyard with the arrival of the jewelry collection by Erte.

A champagne reception for this Carmel exclusive is scheduled 6 to 10 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 23. The Barnyard is at Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

Now in his 90s, Erte was born Romain de Tirteff in St. Petersburg, Russia. Since 1912 he has explored many avenues of the decorative arts, including costume design for films and theater, magazine cover illustration, painting, sculpture and now jewelry design.

Working in the Paris atelier he has occupied for more than 50 years, Erte has recently completed The Erte Sculpture Collection, a series of 24 limited edition bronzes he began in 1979.

"In commenting on my work, critics have observed that my style has changed little, remaining constant since my first published work produced during World War I," Erte observed. "There is truth in this, though it is hardly a justified basis for criticism. My approach to art is simple; I strive to create that which satisfies my taste, a design which I find to be beautiful."

The Erte jewelry collection embraces many metals and precious stones. Pins, necklaces and other pieces are executed in gold, silver, diamonds and rubies. It will be featured at the Reid Gallery through Dec. 15.

For additional information about this collection, call 624-4243.

Bernard Wynne's landscapes featured

WESTERN AMERICA is paid tribute in a one-man show of landscapes by Bernard Wynne at Simic Galleries in Carmel. The artist will be present during a 5 to 9 p.m. reception on Saturday, Nov. 23 at the Sixth Avenue at San Carlos Street Simic Galleries location in Carmel.

Wynne began seriously studying art at the age of 14. Having practiced on his own for several years, at this age he presented his portfolio to an instructor in his home town in Sierra Madre, and was accepted into a class exclusively for adults. Years were spent with this tutor as Wynne refined his skills in landscape drawing, portraiture, still life art and impressionism.

At 17 he won first prize in a local competition. He then studied with such recognized artist-instructors as James Chapin, Ejnar Hansen of the Pasadena Art Institute and later with S. MacDonald Wright, a noted abstract painter.

At 24 he became interested in illustration and studied with Norman Rockwell at the Los Angeles County Art Institute. Not knowing where he specialty lay, Wynne experimented with various media, including oils, watercolor, pastels and charcoal.

Beginning as a portrait artist, Wynne painted numerous commissions, lifelike in appearance and graceful in composition. In two years he painted more than 70 portraits, establishing himself as a professional artist. When he wasn't painting in his studio, Wynne was teaching students the artistry of portraiture and outdoor landscape painting.

Later he turned to still life art and floral painting, followed by an extended period of painting in an impressionistic style. Then the demands of a growing family forced hin. work as an illustrator and draftsman fc several aircraft companies. In the meantime, he continued to paint in his spare hours, entering his paintings in art exhibitions.

Recognition came in the form of prizes, ribbons and monetary awards. An early work was displayed in a group exhibition in Germany after winning the "Pasadena Traveling Show." More and more his style moved toward the natural realism of landscape and seascape art and eventually he began exclusively painting a variety of compositions within this realm.

By age 30, he was listed in Who's Who In American Art. Today at 64, Wynne is considered a premier landscapist, his paintings rich in color, detail and design.

To begin a painting, Wynne follows specific steps. First the composition is fully planned before brush is touched to canvas. With a pencil, Wynne defines hills, trees, mountain ranges, and other composition details. Monotone colors comprise the first layer of under-painting. This technique establishes the values of light and dark within the artwork. Mixing a diverse palette of color, Wynne combines smooth strokes with dots of color, giving the illusion of depth and texture.

Wynne comments that it usually takes him four weeks to complete a painting. If he is asked to work on a large canvas, the time could double.

"It doesn't bother me that I'm a slow producer," he comments. "I have always been patient when it comes to creating fine art. It is more important to create a painting accurate in form and detail, correct in color and balance, and impactful in composition — than one that almost makes it. When a painting jumps out at you, then you know you've done your best."

DESERT SYMPHONY, a 24-by-36-inch oil painting, reflects Bernard Wynne's eye for detail. A champagne reception for Wynne is scheduled from 5 to 9 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 23 at Simic Galleries in Carmel. For an invitation, call 624-7522.

Works by women highlighted

A traveling printmaking exhibition sponsored by the National Association of Women Artists (NAWA) will be shown at the Marjorie Evans Gallery through Nov. 28. The gallery is located in Sunset Center, near Eighth and San Carlos, Carmel. Carmel.

In 1889 the National Association of Women Artists was formed by five women to try to overcome the lack of recognition and scarcity of exhibition space available to them. Today, even though conditions for the woman artist have improved, the NAWA is still dedicated to its purpose of providing space and opportunities for its 700 painters, sculptors and graphic artists.

Many of its members' works are in permanent museum collections and with private and corporate collectors. NAWA artists are listed in such reference publications as Who's Who in American Art, and their works are found in the Archives of American Art at the Smithsonian Institution. NAWA is the oldest and largest national organization of women professional fine artists and exhibits nationally and internationally.

Despite its 90 years, the NAWA reflects in the work of its members, ideas that are innovative and experimental as well as traditional. The graphics are exciting and varied, discriminating in quality only, not in concept, the level of expression keeps up with the times.

Every two years, traveling printmaking exhibitions are carefully selected and scheduled to be shown in 11 museums, art centers, and universities across the nation. The current exhibition will tour from July 1984 through March 1986.

The Marjorie Evans Gallery is open each weekday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Hisashi Otsuka will demonstrate painting

HISASHI OTSUKA will demonstrate the art of painting on silk during a Carmel reception for the unveiling of his newest mixed-media prints, Lady Mieko of Autumn and Kiss of Aloha.

The reception and demonstration will take place from 2 to 6 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 24 at Hanson Art Galleries, Ocean Avenue at San Carlos Street. To obtain an invitation, call 625-3111.

Born in Tokyo and trained in the traditional, almost medieval apprenticeship systems, Otsuka has emerged in the West as an acknowledged master of contemporary interpretation of Japan's traditional past.

At age 15 he became the apprentice of Tateo Jo, one of Japan's 11 exalted masters in kimono design. Thus, it was a natural step for a man of Otsuka's unique creative talents to begin using silk as his canvas and to evolve from a designer to an artist whose vision, craftsmanship and attention to detail have brought him acclaim.

Otsuka presently lives and works in Hawaii, his home since 1981. He pursues his self-appointed mission in life — to share with the world the vivid past that forms the traditions and history of one of the world's greatest cultures, a culture rapidly disappearing under the assault of modern-day civilization.

Otsuka's work harkens back to fierce samurai warriors, beautiful Ukiyo-e women, graceful 11th century lords and ladies, that, together with actors and scenes of the Kabuki theater, form the heart and soul of Japanese culture.

HISASHI Otsuka's Lady Mieko of Autumn is a print that employs lithography, serigraphy, mezzotint, metal foil stamping and sculptural embossing. Otsuka will demonstrate his technique of painting on silk at Hanson Galleries in Carmel.

DeWitt Whistler Jayne's pastels, oils subject of exhibit

THE FOUR-MASTED bark Wanderer, built in 1891, is the subject of a 30-by-40-inch oil painting by DeWitt Whistler Jayne. His one-man show opens Saturday, Nov. 23 at New Masters Gallery in Carmel. A reception is planned from 4 to 7 p.m.

PASTELS OF autumnal New England, Pacific Ocean surf and oil paintings of tall ships under sail will be featured in the annual one-man show for DeWitt Whistler Jayne at New Masters Gallery, Sixth and San Carlos, Carmel.

An opening night reception is planned from 4 to 7 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 23. The show will continue through December.

Jayne has given to pastel a strength, solidity and brilliance foreign to most other pastel artists. His pastels show powerful drawing in firm, decisive strokes. He juxtaposes one color at full intensity with another to enhance the strength of both. His pastels have the fullness and richness of oils; they are vigorous, precise, and intellectual; they have no superficial delicacy. His strokes are dangerous. He takes risks.

His artistry is displayed again in his dramatic oil paintings of tall ships of the 1800s. Jayne has been painting and sailing for more than 50 years. He is one of those rare artists who can accurately depict the rigging of the great sailing ships. His intense concern for correct detail resulted from his early training at the Philadelphia Museum's School of Art where he, and such artists as Andrew Wyeth, studied under the first-generation students of the great American illustrator Howard Pyle.

It was their passion to put precise drawing before all else that led to Jayne's remarkable ability to accurately capture the vital elements of a scene.

His love of the sea began early. As a young man he mastered the art of sailing with the wind. Now in his mid-70s, he continues to sail and he has assembled one of the nation's most comprehensive historical resource files on old tall ships.

During his career as an illustrator, Jayne executed more than 80 national magazine covers and some 200 book jackets.

His national reputation began with commissioned portraits of then-Senator John F. Kennedy, Vice President Richard Nixon and other famous people.

Jayne's works have been exhibited at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Philadelphia Art Alliance, and are in the collections of Mrs. Harry Byrd, the Hon. Herman Talmadge, the Rev. Billy Graham, Wheaton (Illinois) College, Westmont College in Santa Barbara, the University of California at Sacramento, the Submarine Library in New London, Conn., and at the headquarters of the Curtis Publishing Company, which published The Saturday Evening Post.

A Muffin of a House

Nothing on the outside of this place prepares you for the enchanting variety of nooks and crannies inside. It stands well back along a typical Carmel street, about six blocks south of Ocean. A low wall leads along the curving drive and up to a demure little covered porch. The exterior is rustic, a broad dormer window projects from the right front corner, and one guesses that here is another of those quaint little Carmel cottages.

It has elements of that, but no way can you "type-cast" it. It's a glorious mixture of Carmel cottage, country house, Manhattan apartment and Gothic cathedral. And curiously, it all fits together.

The living room is hip-roofed with a complex structure of beams demanding your attention. The corner dormer is revealed as a pillowed window seat, an inviting nook. A fireplace dominates the south wall. At your left, running straight down the center of the house, is a long dining room, lighted by two giant skylights in its peaked roof, and ending at a beckoning door to a brick patio at the rear.

Five doors open from this cathedral-like chamber: living room at front, patio at rear, kitchen at left front, and bedrooms left and right. The left bedroom is the master suite, a sizeable boudoir plus a two-room bath that would be at home in New York. The first room has two great picture windows looking out to the private patio, a giant skylight and a magnificent Jacuzzi tub! The second room contains a vanity with triple mirrors, commode and many cabinets.

The other rear bedroom is smaller, with another dormer window seat, and would serve either as an intimate den or bedroom. Still another dormered bedroom and skylighted bath lie between this and the living room.

The kitchen might have been lifted intact from a European country home. It's done in Delft blue and cream, has double sinks, a flush range set in a projecting counter, conveniently placed washer, dryer and refrigerator, and a completely charming breakfast area facing the front. Another nook, probably one where every party will wind up.

Architecturally, this defies every attempt to give it a name. It's fascinating proof that the finest taste is a blending of flavors.

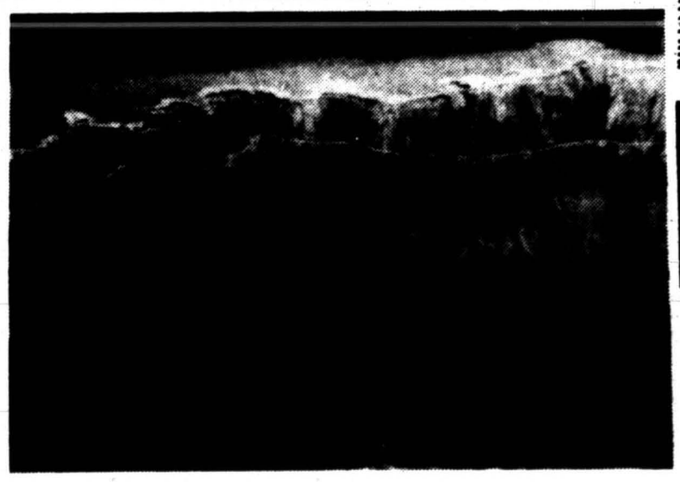
BEAUTIFUL UNTAMED BIG SUR LAND

The sweep of majestic, rugged coastline above, from Cooper Point southwards past Pfeiffer Point, with Post's Rancho Sierra Mar in the background, captures many prominent historical landmarks of Big Sur. Within this area, a few exceptional parcels of choice land are available. To the south of Cooper Point is moon shaped, white sand Cooper Beach, touched by 40 acres of wild, remote land extending across Deer This land is contiguous to Los Padres Nat'l. Forst on two sides. Price is $485,000. Immediately east, on Clear Ridge, are 15 delightful ocean view acres of meadowland for $235,000. On the skyline to the south of the Big Sur River Gorge, are 57 magnificent upland acres for $375,000.

Famed Pfeiffer Beach's white sand silhouettes its wave engulfed rocks, with Sycamore Canyon running 2½ mi. eastward to the Scenic Highway. Beyond is Big Sur River's Gorge, extending into the vast Ventana Wilderness Area. Immediately south of Sycamore Canyon, on Pfeiffer Point, rests an exceptional 10 ocean front acres, including existing barn and building permits, with 70 mile outlook down the coast for $390,000. Northward, and across Sycamore Canyon, 25 acres look out at the world's largest ocean — $150,000, including building permit.



Partington Point, above, has been a famed location for Sur Coast inhabitants over the ages, as witnessed by Indian middens, homesteads of the last century, along with artists, musicians, educators, writers and scientists of this century. Near the end of the visible portion of the Partington Ridge Road are 2+ fine ocean view acres for $195,000. Further up, astride the ridgeline, 13 acres command incredible outlooks at $365,000. Above, near the Los Padres Nat'l. Forest, is a 14 acre parcel for $181,500 and 10 acres for $148,500, both to be sold with permits.

OUTSTANDING OCEAN VIEW

Enjoy outstanding ocean views from the living room, dining room or patio of this fine Carmel home located on Scenic Drive. With over 2,000 square feet of living area, this home offers plenty of extras. The kitchen has lots of cabinets, custom ceramic tile countertops, and built-ins. There is a 22x15 bedroom downstairs with bath and fireplace, and two bedrooms and bath upstairs. The large living room has ceiling to floor fireplace and there is wall-to-wall carpet throughout. The structure is in excellent condition and there is an alarm system for security. $745,000.

PRICE SLASHED AGAIN

The owner has lowered the price to $265,000 on this Carmel home located just three blocks south of Ocean. It is as charming as its name, "Casa de las Flores," and has 1400 square feet of living area with three bedrooms and two baths. The living room and dining room are all knotty pine and living room has fireplace and vaulted ceilings. The kitchen has been updated with a dishwasher, disposal and greenhouse window added. The third bedroom is a converted garage and could be changed back again. Extras include hot tub, large deck, drip irrigation system and grape stake fence.

PRICE LOWERED $30,000

The owner has slashed the price by $30,000 on this nearly new Pebble Beach home on the 13th fairway at Spyglass Hill Golf Course. Situated on a quiet cul-de-sac, this contemporary home has 2 bedrooms, 2 baths and a loft that can be made into a third bedroom. Extras include wet bar, formal dining room with built-in side board, laundry room, shake roof and view of the golf course. It has 2300 square feet of living area and a double garage. $319,000.

LEASE-OPTION CONSIDERED

The owner will consider a lease-option or will rent this 5 bedroom, 5 bath home looking onto the 4th fairway of Monterey Peninsula Country Club's Shore Course. This lovely Spanish villa has a view of the ocean and is situated in a serene setting among mature oaks. The large living room has two sets of French doors that open onto a rear courtyard patio. There is a formal dining room with windows looking onto golf course and the kitchen has a commercial range, dishwasher and butler's pantry. Freshly painted exterior. $435,000.

LANDMARK COCKTAIL LOUNGE

Historic Carmel cocktail lounge located on Ocean Avenue. Seating for 60 people with area for some outside seating. Excellent location in charming Carmel building with two fireplaces, near popular restaurants. Eight years remaining on the current lease with option for more. Lease includes furniture, fixtures, goodwill and liquor license. Inventory is excluded. $450,000.

Special Thanksgiving menus prepared

Restaurants offer holiday bounty

THANKSGIVING, that celebration of plenty, also supplies a chance to sample Monterey Peninsula restaurants at their best. Feasts from the traditional to the far-out are served around the bay on Thursday, Nov. 28. The following guide outlines the diversity of restaurant dining on Thanksgiving Day.

The Sardine Factory, 701 Wave St. in Monterey will serve Thanksgiving dinner from 12:30 to 10 p.m. The menu includes antipasto, chicken princess soup, tossed green salad with choice of dressing, sage dressing, broccoli, fresh cranberry relish, duchess potatoes, candied yams and freshly baked pumpkin pie. Price for adults is $15.95; children 12 and under, $8.95. The regular menu is also available. For reservations call 373-3775.

At Cafe Central, 123 Crossroads Blvd. in Carmel, there will be a traditional Thanksgiving served in a truly festive family style at reasonable prices. A choice of ham or turkey will come with dressing, cranberry sauce and all the rest of the Thanksgiving trimmings. Children's plates will be available and there is no charge for extra plates. This is Cafe Central's way of saying thank-you to their patrons. Call 624-0599.

Thanksgiving will be noted with a special meal at Coco La Fleur in the Valley Hills Shopping Center, Carmel Valley. Seating is at 5 p.m. for the dinner, which includes blushed celery soup, potted shrimp and cucumber salad, honey-orange capon with Emsworth stuffing, glazed baby vegetables, cranberry sherbet, Doboshtorte and coffee. Price is $30 and reservations are required. Call 625-5366.

Several choices will be available at Jack London's Bar and Bistro from noon to 2 a.m. on Thanksgiving day. The menu includes prime rib with baked potato and vegetables for $12.95; Cornish game hens with orange sauce, parsley potatoes and vegetables for $9.75; baked ham with raisin sauce, parsley potatoes and vegetables for $8.95 (children 12 and under, half-price); turkey breast with mashed potatoes and gravy, stuffing and vegetables for $7.95 (children 12 and under, half-price). All dinners include soup, salad, bread, glass of house wine, and pumpkin or apple pie. Jack London's is on San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth in the Mall, Carmel. 624-2336.

Reservations are required for the special meal to be served at The Covey at Quail Lodge, three miles up Carmel Valley Road in the Valley. The menu includes Creme Marie Louise and cream of chicken with veal and barley soup, green salad with fresh fruit and hazelnut dressing, roast turkey or honey baked ham with sage dressing and candied yams, Brussels sprouts with walnuts, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce and choice of pumpkin pie, pecan pie or ice cream. Price is $15 for adults and $10 for children. Dinner is served from 4 p.m. with last seating at 8:30. Limited regular menu will also be available. 624-1581.

Celebrate Thanksgiving with Middle Eastern flair at The Nile Restaurant, 301 Grand Ave. in Pacific Grove. A traditional meal of turkey and the trimmings will be served for $4.95. The full menu of Middle Eastern dishes will also be available Thanksgiving Day. The Nile will be open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. 375-3533.

At The Summerhouse Restaurant, 6 Pilot Road in Carmel Valley Village, the ever-popular brunch will be served from 8 to 11 a.m. on Thanksgiving. Choose from an extensive menu that includes eggs Benedict, huevos rancheros, omelettes, blueberry muffins and champagne. For reservations, call 659-5337.

Dinner will be served from 2 to 8 p.m. on Thanksgiving day at Sans Souci, Lincoln Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues in Carmel. The holiday menu is composed of wild mushroom soup; salad Sans Souci; choice of roast turkey with homemade dressing and giblet gravy or roast leg of lamb with thyme; fresh cranberry sauce with lemon and orange zest; puree of Louisiana yam and apple; medley of garden vegetables; plus pumpkin or apple pie. Price is $14.95 for turkey, $15.95 for lamb. To make reservations, call 624-6220.

At Casanova, Thanksgiving dinner begins with antipasto salad; choice of mushrooms, soup or gnocci; roasted turkey with mushroom madeira sauce and fresh cranberry and pistachio dressing. Meal price is $18.75. The regular menu will also be available. Casanova is on Fifth Avenue near Mission Street in Carmel. Breakfast will be served 8 a.m. to noon; dinner from 2 to 9 p.m. 625-0501.

Holiday specials will augment the regular menus on Thanksgiving day at Carmel's Patisserie Boissiere, Mission between Ocean and Seventh; and L'Amondine, Ocean between Dolores and Lincoln. L'Amondine will be open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Patisserie Boissiere will be open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The Willow Tea Room, upstairs at 245 Crossroads Blvd., Carmel, will serve a set course dinner at 2 and 6 p.m. A

"Mesquite Comes to Town"
(Food article in Time Mag., March 12)

Thanks Time, but we've been using mesquite wood in our open-hearth broiler for years. We pioneered its use here to achieve tantalizing flavors in fresh fish and fine meats. Time says "a status fuel." We knew it all the Time!

Premium wines: California, French.

Brunch is an event at these peninsula restaurants

It's not without reason that brunch has become such a popular pastime on the Monterey Peninsula. Many of the area's finest restaurants boast patios for outdoor dining and striking views of Monterey Bay that can only be enjoyed fully during the day.

Brunch at the Rogue is served from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Enjoy the beautiful view of the Monterey Yacht Harbor at the Marina, Wharf No. 2 in Monterey while dining on fresh seafood specialties, seasonal produce and quality beef. Try the world-famous chowders, the fresh poached salmon, shrimp tostada, crepes Monterey or create your own omelette. All entrees are served with fresh fruit juice, fruit in season, homestyle potatoes and a variety of breads. Prices range from $5.95 to $11.95 for a complete brunch. Call 372-4586.

All you can eat is the rule at a champagne brunch buffet at Surdi's Two Guys from Italy, 2030 Fremont St., Monterey. Sunday brunch buffet served from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. includes a complimentary eight-ounce glass of champagne or orange juice and features a salad bar with more than 25 selections including bay shrimp, pasta salad, fresh fruits, cold meats and cheeses.

Hot buffet specialties offer several main entrees plus eggs Florentine, quiche Lorraine, baked ham and pizza. To top it off, visit the "all you can eat" dessert buffet with pastries, eclairs and cakes. All of the above costs $8.95; children under 12, $5.45. While there, visit the new cocktail lounge. Call 646-0100.

An assortment of three-egg omelettes, from simple to crab and cheese-bedecked, can be ordered from 11 a.m. on at Bullwacker's, 653 Cannery Row. Bullwacker's also features private dining rooms for group lunches, banquets and dinners. Call 373-1353.

Enjoy Sunday brunch overlooking the lovely courtyard at Anton & Michel, on Mission between Ocean and Seventh in Carmel. A complete brunch with a set menu is $10.50 and begins with choice of fresh orange juice, champagne, ramos fizz, mimosa, kir royale, or bloody Mary; fresh fruit cocktail followed by choice of eggs Benedict or Nova Scotia, Spanish omelette, seafood crepes, fettuccine Monterey, avocado shrimp boat, quiche maison, lobster quenelles, fried calamari or chicken chasseur; croissants, butter, jam and marmalade. Coffee, Sanka or tea included. Brunch begins at 10 a.m. and is served until 2 p.m. Call 624-2406.

Sunday brunch at the Clock Garden Restaurant, 565 Abrego, Monterey, is served from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Especially pleasant is the colorful patio garden for outdoor dining. The menu includes a variety of egg dishes including Eggs Benedict, Coast French toast, and luncheon items of salads, sandwiches and special crepes. Full bar is available. Call 375-6100.

Domenico's offers a sumptuous brunch and a lovely view of Monterey Bay from 10 a.m. Sunday. $7.95 to $11.95 is the price for a complete brunch featuring delicious egg dishes such as Eggs Benedict, Eggs Sardu, Eggs Monterey, seafood omelette or vegetable frittata. The meal includes a complimentary mimosa, assorted fruit salads, country fried potatoes and fresh muffins. Special prices for child's portion. Domenico's is at 50 Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Call 372-3655.

The Spyglass Restaurant in La Playa Hotel, Camino Real at Eighth, Carmel, serves Sunday brunch from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Begin with a buffet of fresh juice, fresh fruit, mini-bagels, whipped salmon mousse, cheeses and the chef's own pastries.

Entrees are then served at your table. Some of the specialties include puffed fruit pancakes, frittatas or egg specialties. Brunch is priced from $7.50 to $12.50 per person and may be enjoyed in the dining room or the lovely outdoor terrace. Call 624-4010.

Los Laureles Lodge serves Sunday brunch from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. (also available daily) Dating back to the early 1830s, the former Rancho Los Laureles is located west on Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley.

The classic eggs Benedict, omelettes and egg combinations are on the menu from $4.25 to $5.50; also salads from $5.50, a "souper" salad special at $3.50 plus a variety of hot and cold entrees. Imported and domestic beer and house wines (glass or bottle) are served. Call 659-2233.

Jack London's serves Sunday brunch from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and complete brunch for $5.95 includes a glass of champagne, fresh breads, and a choice of Eggs Benedict, strawberry crepes, and French toast dipped in Grand Marnier batter. A selection of omelettes is available at $4.95. It's located on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth in "The Mall," Carmel. Call 624-2336.

Sunday brunch with a Mexican accent may be had at Consuelo's in a charming 1886 Victorian house or on the patio. Brunch is served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and includes a glass of champagne. Assorted egg dishes with a traditional Mexican flavor are available, also avocados and special tostadas. It's at 361 Lighthouse Ave., Monterey. Call 372-8111.

A breakfast menu is served all day Saturday and Sunday, beginning at 6 a.m. at the Peacock Bar and Grill, 611 Lighthouse Ave. in Monterey. A large variety of champagnes and wines is available and the large-screen television is for your entertainment. 372-5565.

if food matters
to you, try the frog
The La Maison Grenouille School of cooking restaurant has been established not only as a training ground for its students, but to provide fine dining to its patrons. Students must maintain the reputation for quality food preparation, both here in school as well as throughout their future careers.
MUST FINE FOOD PRESENTATION BE STUFFY AND FORMAL?
The ambience at the Frog is stylishly lighthearted. The attitude about what goes on your plate is serious.
PRICE: COOKING SCHOOL VS "REAL" RESTAURANT
The Frog is a real restaurant with real food costs and overhead. Our knowledgeable clientele have discovered a true fine dining bargain on the Peninsula: A prix fixe menu (either 17.50 or 22.50) offering a choice of 6 entrees, 2 appetizers, soup or salad, and 3 desserts, a fine wine list and freshly ground French roast coffee or espresso. We are able to do this because our students do all the cooking. In order to obtain their certificates they cook with great heart and an expertise that is amazing. What they lack in organization and timing, they make up for in numbers and by the ever watchful eye of Chef/Instructor Luis Luzzatti.
MENU
The menu at the Frog changes every two weeks, to the advantage of both student and dinner patron. With a basis in French cuisine, the students' menus reflect cuisine from France, Italy, Spain, Greece and their own creations as well. Desserts are normally classic French. Students make bread every day, as well as stocks, puff pastry and many other items that are often purchased by other restaurants. Here everything starts with raw ingredients and at that, the best we can find. We are picky! If you are picky too, join us for dinner, Tuesday through Saturdays from 6 p.m. until 9:30 p.m.

A RESTAURANT critic recently compared the dining experience at Surdi's similar to a visit to many of the fine restaurants of Rome. A new cocktail lounge is a recent addition to the extensive menu and wine list at Surdi's Two Guys from Italy in Monterey. Owners Dottie and Bob Surdi have also added some new entrees to their menu, such as Tortellini Roberto, steak and lobster and Fettuccini alla Surdi's. It's open daily for breakfast, lunch and dinner. 646-0100.

Dock Lor's Canton, on Fifth between San Carlos and Dolores streets, Carmel, is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The extensive Cantonese menu features ginger beef, lemon chicken and Mo Goo Gai Pan. Try the party trays to go. 624-3941.

Robata, under the windmill in The Barnyard, Carmel, serves dinners until 11 p.m. nightly. Full menu is available as well as a sushi bar and cocktails until closing. 624-2643.

Surdi's Two Guys From Italy serves dinners and snacks until 10 p.m. Full menu including pizzas is available. The full cocktail lounge is open until 11:30 p.m. nightly. It's located at 2030 Fremont St., Monterey off Highway 1 near the Monterey County Fairgrounds. 646-0100.

For late night snacks of authentic Middle East dishes such as falafel, tabouli, shish kebob and baklava, try the Nile Restaurant, 301 Grand Ave. in Pacific Grove. It is open until 10 every night and feature various coffees along with wine and beer. 375-3533.

Gianni's Pizza, 725 Lighthouse Ave., Monterey, serves pizza made from an authentic Italian recipe plus a large selection of Italian specialties. It's open until 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, until midnight Friday and Saturday and until 10 p.m. on Sunday. A full service bar is available. Call ahead for take-out service. 649-1500.

Authentic Thai food is served at Siamese Bay, 131 Webster St. behind the post office in Monterey until 10 nightly. Specialties include angel wings, Mee Grob, Sa-Tay and Thai curries. 373-1550.

Siamese Bay II, located at 574 Lighthouse Ave. in Monterey, serves the same authentic Thai food. Both restaurants have take-out food and can cater events. 373-1183.

The Spyglass Restaurant in La Playa Hotel, Camino Real at Eighth, Carmel, serves dinners and snacks until 11 p.m. nightly. Special appetizers include stuffed mushrooms, nachos and shrimp. The regular menu includes Monterey Bay fish chowder, chicken tostada salad, New York steak sandwich, hamburger La Playa and freshly baked pastry. 624-4010.

Abb's Barbecue, 1667 Del Monte, Seaside is open Friday and Saturday nights until 11 p.m. Their specialties are barbecued ribs, chicken and sliced beef. They also do catering and have food to go. Closed Sundays. 394-3582.

Bumbleberry, 2329 Fremont in Monterey is open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. For a late snack or dinner, they serve 66 omelette combinations, plus gourmet hamburgers, fish, homemade pasta and lasagna. 372-1812.

John Pisto's award-winning Whaling Station Inn Restaurant at 763 Wave Street, overlooking Cannery Row in Monterey, has evolved through the years into a supper house of rare quality. Its expansion and evolution, however, have done nothing to the fine cuisine except enhance it. The menu is addressed to the discriminating diner who appreciates fine foods expertly prepared and served.

The Cocktail Parlour is a pleasant Victorian-style oasis in which to enjoy a pre-dinner aperitif while waiting, perhaps, for friends to join you. Throughout the restaurant there is a feeling of mellow woods, old prints and a graciousness that comes from the staff's eagerness to be of service.

Seafood and veal are probably John Pisto's personal favorites and both are offered in a variety of ways, always absolutely fresh. A mountain of cherrystone clams steamed in the shell, served on beautifully sauced linguine becomes a real feast here, the more so since dinner includes artichoke vinaigrette, fresh soup, salad and vegetables.

If you've never tried mussels, do! John serves them with clams, again over linguine, or adds shrimps, scallops and calamari to them for his combination seafood dinner. On the simpler side, there is fresh grilled pertrale sole and abalone as well as seasonal fish which may range from baked ling cod to poached Monterey Bay salmon.

Veal is served piccata, marsala or with mushroom and cream sauce. And truly superb sweetbreads are done in a spicy tomato sauce or classic cream sauce.

From the mesquite open-hearth broiler come roast quail or chicken, New York steak or filet mignon, grilled Big Sur trout, beef brochette and more. An unusual (for a restaurant) and delicious specialty is the Veal Rollatini, filled with prosciutto and imported cheese and sauteed in wine sauce. Also not to be overlooked, and long a favorite with regular patrons are the Veal Cannelloni, filled with a delicately spiced veal and spinach mixture.

Leave room for dessert! The cannoli, cream-filled Italian crepe pastries, are sublime, as is the rich custard eclair, cheesecake, Bavarian pudding and more. Add espresso or capuccino as the perfect accompaniment.

We must not forget the wine list. John is justifiably proud to have assembled an outstanding cellar of California wines, many from fine, small vineyards with limited productions. These include Sterling, Callaway, Chappellet, Dry Creek, Bell Canyon, Geyser Peak, Trefethen, Chalone, Enz, Mill Creek, Fetzer, Lytton Springs, Ridge and Joseph Phelps, to name a few, and every wine has been personally tasted and selected for your pleasure. From a chenin blanc to a rich cabernet sauvignon, from pinot chardonnay to Monterey riesling, you have an adventure awaiting you here.

Reservations are suggested: 373-4248.

When Ted Balestreri and Bert Cutino, owners of Monterey's famous Sardine Factory Restaurant, decided to create a new, private dining facility, it took the form of a unique wine cellar. Located below the glass-domed Conservatory Room, the room represents the epitome of gracious dining.

The dining area is dominated by a 25 foot refectory table, with high-backed tapestry chairs that can seat up to 26 persons for luncheon or dinner. The table was cut from a Big Sur Redwood. Adjoining are a series of vaulted wine storage caves, containing more than 1,000 premium wines. There are also private wine lockers, available to The Sardine Factory patrons.

The Sardine Factory Restaurant recently received The Wine Spectator Magazine's Grand Award for 1982. This award is being presented to only 12 restaurants in the United States, further denoting the merits of this spectacular wine inventory.

Massive doors, hand-carved in a grape motif, lead into the dining area, where the door is reminiscent of Delmonico's elegance during the golden era, at the turn of the century. At the far end is a lighted, stained glass panel, flanked by elaborate candelabra. Overhead is a 16th Century Spanish chandelier, and on the table, more intricate candelabra from an old abbey. Elegant, gold mirrors hang next to the entrance doors — one is a Victorian piece and the other is 18th Century Italian. The handsome sideboard is 16th Century and supports a beautiful Louis XV chiming clock.

As you descend the ancient stairway and enter The Cognac Bar, the scent of the wine grape welcomes you. The bar, complete with ancient bottles of wine and other spirits, is stocked with fine Cognac, Armagnac, Sherry, Port, liqueurs and tobaccos. Cocktails are also available.

Those planning private parties in the wine cellar are assisted expertly in the selection of wines, flowers and music to suit the occasion. Here one finds the ultimate in custom-made, white glove, epicurean dining service. Fred Dame is the Cellar Master, whose expertise is so effective in planning an incomparable luncheon or dinner party. For this, he appreciates as much advance notice as possible. Fred is a member of the Chaine de Rotisseur, an officer of The Knights of the vine, a Class A sommelier in the Guild of Sommeliers, a member of the Les Ami du Vin, a Chevalier in the Chevalier de la Meduse, and a member of the Monterey Peninsula Chef's Association.

Early dining at these restaurants

Before the theater, before a movie or concert or just because it's been a long day — an early dinner can be the perfect start to the evening or a perfect end to the day.

Many restaurants on the Monterey Peninsula serve dinner at 4:30 p.m. or 5 p.m., and listed here are several that serve early dinner specials.

Come as early as you please for dinner at Jack London's, San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth in Carmel. Varied menu, served from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m., includes regional fare of chicken teriyaki, rib eye steak, fish and chips, fresh fish of the day, chili and a variety of pizzas. House specialties are French onion soup, calamari and New York potato skins. Full bar and take-out service. Call 624-2336.

From soup to dessert, complete dinners for $5.50 are served from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. daily except holidays at Bullwacker's, 653 Cannery Row. Choose from several house specialties, including Pacific red snapper, shish kebab and calamari parmesan. Call 373-1353.

The Clock Garden Restaurant, 565 Abrego, Monterey, serves an early dinner from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily with prices ranging from $6.95 to $8.95. Choose from nine different items on the regular menu, such as sand dabs, red snapper, leg of pork, seafood or crepes.

Each entree includes soup or salad or one-half chilled artichoke served with special mayonnaise. There is a lovely garden/patio for outdoor dining, and a full bar. Call 375-6100.

Captain's Cove, 643 Cannery Row in Monterey, serves champagne for only 50 cents a glass with your early bird dinner. CANNERY ROW GUIDE

Cannery Row — the street immortalized in John Steinbeck's novel and by a little silver fish — is one of the highlights of a visit to the Monterey Peninsula.

The mile-long Row curves along the shores of Monterey Bay from the Coast Guard Station to the former site of the Hovden Cannery, now home to the state-of-the-art Monterey Bay Aquarium.

"The sardine capital of the world" had humble beginnings around the turn of the century when F.E. Booth built the first fish packing plant. As the local pilchard (or sardine) became a gourmet delicacy rather than bait for salmon fishermen, demand outdistanced supply.

An Italian fisherman, Pietro Ferrante, and a Norwegian canning expert, Knut Hovden, changed the course of Cannery Row's history. Ferrante imported Italian fishing nets; Hovden modernized packing methods. The nets made it possible to scoop of tons of fish with one haul.

Purse seines eventually replaced the Italian lampara nets and were capable of scooping up more fish than the smaller fishing boats could carry! World War II created a new boom for Cannery Row, which by now boasted a number of small groceries and other businesses tucked in among the canneries, as well as the biology laboratory of Ed "Doc" Ricketts.

In 1945, Cannery Row packed more than 235,000 tons of sardines in 19 operating canneries. But there were some pessimists among the fish-packing optimists — marine biologist Ed "Doc" Ricketts, among them. He warned that overfishing might destroy the entire industry.

In 1946, Cannery Row packed 142,000 tons; by 1948, only 14,000 tons were processed. And in 1951, after a brief comeback, there were no sardines at all. Doc Ricketts maintained they had all gone into cans.

As the canneries closed, they fell into ramshackle disrepair and were frequently destroyed by uncontrollable fires.

There are still enough of the hulking cannery buildings, however, and the overpasses that cross Cannery Row, to retain the flavor, if not the aroma, of the past. That the canneries now house restaurants and art galleries makes them all the more accessible and interesting; after all, who would visit a sardine packing plant?

The Row is now the home of many fine restaurants that serve everything from fresh local seafood to Chinese, Italian and Continental cuisine, not to mention Sunday brunch.

No longer is Cannery Row deserted after dark. Now there are bright lights, laughter and the sound of music. Visitors can enjoy a variety of entertainment in restaurant cocktail lounges and there are several spots that offer dancing to live music.

THE THREE-STORY, 335,000 gallon Kelp Forest tank in the Monterey Bay Aquarium can be viewed from two levels. More than 5,000 specimens, most of them native to Monterey Bay, can be viewed in the $40 million complex, which opened in October 1984.

Constructed in "the footprint" of the Hovden Cannery on the west end of Cannery Row is the Monterey Bay Aquarium. The $40 million aquarium opened in October of 1984. Its 83 tanks are home to more than 5,000 fishes, mammals, birds, invertebrates and plants, virtually all of which can be found in Monterey Bay.

The aquarium is a place where visitors can gaze up into the cathedral-like branches of a kelp forest as a diver explains its intricacies from the other side of the seven-inch window, stare eye-to-eye with a tank's worth of frisky sea otters and brave petting a bat ray with no stinger.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily except Christmas. For recorded information about the aquarium, call 375-3333.

Try one of these peninsula restaurants

It's not hard to say enough nice things about the Chinese Seafood Restaurant in Monterey.

For one thing, the food is excellent. And the service is prompt and courteous. The decor is pleasant and refreshing. And the prices are reasonable, too.

But perhaps the best part for those Chinese food lovers whose palates may have become jaded through the years with the standard fare, is the fact that seafood is the centerpiece of this new entry into the Monterey Peninsula restaurant scene.

The menu itself is mind-boggling in the number and variety of items offered — everything from seafood dishes (31 separate seafood entrees), to poultry dishes, to lamb, beef, pork, and a whole range of dinners for two, plus interesting appetizers.

The Chinese Seafood Restaurant is the kind of place where the diners should plan to spend some time just selecting the right dish from the menu, and more time for a leisurely meal. Owner William Wong has created a cheerful atmosphere by use of decor from Taiwan, including a specially-made Chinese wall tapestry which is quite intriguing.

Dinner combinations include soup, appetizers, and entree for two or more persons, and range in price from $6.95 to $11.95. Offerings under the dinner category include won ton soup, fried won ton, eggroll, sweet and sour pork, almond chicken, pork chung kung, Szechuan pork, shrimp with lobster sauce, beef with black mushroom, bean curd with shrimp, mixed vegetables, Szechuan fish fillet, shrimp scallops, kung pao squid, and more.

Some of the dozens of entrees are most unusual. For example, you can order Mongolian beef at $5.95, which consists of sliced beef tenderoin with green onion in a Mongolian sauce; or you can get shrimp in an edible basket of crispy noodles for $8.55, a delicious and fun way to go. One of the four people in our group ordered this entree, and we all shared bites from the shrimp as well as the basket.

Then there's "Szechuan three delight," which includes shrimp, chicken, and beef in a hot garlic sauce for $7.25; sauteed scallops in black bean sauce for $8.55 — you get the idea.

The sizzling rice items seem to be very popular, and there are more than a dozen separate appetizers from which to select, including pot stickers (highly recommended available Monday through Thursday nights only), tempura shrimp, barbecued spareribs, and much more.

It's the kind of place where the family an relax and enjoy the food and each other's company, or where groups can meet and enjoy sharing the variety of food items.

The Chinese Seafood Restaurant is located at 150 Del Monte Ave., Monterey (upstairs). Reservations recommended at 373-2010. Open seven days a week, and for lunch. Food to go is also available.

Earning well-deserved praise, The Covey Restaurant, adjoining Quail Lodge on the grounds of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, was recently chosen as one of seven Monterey Peninsula restaurants to be included in the guide The Great Restaurants of California, which selects 100 fine spots from throughout the entire state.

Luxurious surroundings, impeccable service and fine French cuisine all combine to make dining at the Covey a satisfying experience. The dining room, beautifully decorated in warm brown tones, offers a restful view over the lake, greens and fountains of the country club.

The a la carte menu offers a wide range of classic Continental foods, ranging from quenelles of fresh Monterey Bay sole and escargot on the hors'doeuvres list to French onion soup and the freshest salads.

Reservations necessary. 624-1581.

The Clock Garden Restaurant in Monterey is a culinary and esthetic delight. As if tasty food weren't enough, The Clock goes one step further and offers its varied cuisine in a garden-like setting which is at once woodsy and warm.

With a total of six different menus covering everything from Sunday brunch to early dinners, The Clock has something to offer everyone. There's a separate menu just for fresh fish and seafood (14 items), another for early dinners served from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. every day (nine items), "mini-brunch" (10 items), Sunday brunch (23 items), luncheon (24 items), and dinner (19 items). Whew!

If the weather cooperates — and sometimes even when it doesn't — it's possible to eat outside in the garden patio which faces Abrego Street in downtown Monterey. At night, there is a fireplace to warm outdoor-oriented diners, too.

Inside, The Clock is a cozy, wood-lined affair which manages to be both open and intimate but without the hanging-fern look so common (and so overdone these days) in California eating establishments. The Clock recently has expanded and remodeled its bar to accomodate more patrons.

Dinner from the regular menu can be ordered at the same time that a more limited — and more frugal — fare is available from the "early bird" menu. Take your pick from calamari, seafood crepes, filets of sand dabs, filets of red snapper, stuffed filet of snapper, grilled snapper, leg of pork, leg of lamb, or chicken crepes on the "early bird" dinner specials.

Regular dinner fare is more elaborate in terms of both taste and price, and ranges from Crocked Chicken Castroville at $11.95, to Polynesian Filet Teriyaki at $12.95, to "The Success of the Pisciculturist," which is described on the menu as "What's fresh from the bay today...ask."

Already a Monterey Peninsula institution, The Clock deserves its fine reputation. If you have never tried this culinary landmark, you can place your reservations seven days a week by calling 375-6100. The Clock Garden Restaurant is located at 565 Abrego, Monterey.

For delicious oriental food, visit Doc Lor's Canton Restaurant on Fifth Avenue between Dolores and San Carlos Streets, Carmel (across from the post office). Doc Lor has been cooking up Oriental delicacies for many years. They are open Monday through Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Popular with local folks as well as visitors is the very modestly priced luncheon menu with combination plates as low as $2.75.

For dinner, there are complete meals featuring old favorites such as chow mein, spare ribs, egg foo yung, and a variety of chicken, beef, pork and shrimp dishes.

Part of the fun of dining in a Japanese restaurant comes from the atmosphere, the setting and the services, all of which add to the pleasure at The Ginza Restaurant across from the Custom House Plaza, 136 Olivier St., Old Monterey.

For luncheon or dinner, prepared at your table by the hostess, consider the Kaiseki Deluxe, with its traditional setting of five entrees: beef, chicken and salmon in teriyaki sauce, Chawan-mushi (an exotic hot shrimp custard) and tempura, fresh meats and vegetables deep fried in a light and crispy egg batter.

The new Teppan Yaki cuisine is available on the Monterey Peninsula only at the Ginza. It's really fun to watch the chef prepare and cook your dinner right at your table.

A dining must at the Ginza is a bottle of Sake to sip during dinner. Served warm, the rice wine is both pleasant and potent, and is poured into tiny, thimble-sized china cups that get refilled again and again.

There's also that Japanese necessity, good, hot, aromatic green tea for constant sipping between chopsticksful, as you taste one delicacy after another. That's what Japanese food is all about.
